THIRTEENTH YEAR. NO. 174.

EAST LIVERPOOL, OHIO, FRIDAY, DECEMBER, 31.

TWO CENTS

A NEW YEAR'S LAMENT.

Scores of budding bards who tell us in their tuneful, tearful rhyme we must lavish all our pity on the poor at New Year's time. Should restrain their rueful sighing, cease the tearing of their hair. For the man who needs our pity is the hapless millionaire.

All the year he has expenses quite peculiar to his kind.

If he owns a country mansion, he is sure as fate to find

There is little left at New Year's if he does not have a care,

For the country tax assessor always plucks a millionaire.

When the Christmastime is with him, there is little joy in life. He must spend a modest fortune on his daughters and his wife.

He has forty poor relations who must have their presents rare, or they'll curse the parsimony of the luckless millionaire.

He has scores of friends impoverished who must each receive a lift.

And his butler and his coachman both expect a New Year's gift. Half a dozen other servants lie in wait to get a share.

Of the "Happy New Year" favors of the hunted millionaire.

There's the boy who leaves the paper—he must get his usual tip;

There's McGee, the faithful postman, and his "Happy New Year's" trip;

There's the elevator younger and the "cabby" on the square—

Not a one must be forgotten by the bothered millionaire.

Every clerk around the office he can see is full of hope.

That he'll find an extra greenback in the pay day envelope.

At his club each smiling lackey's primed to either bless or swear. If remembered or forgotten by the worried millionaire.

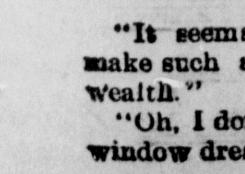

All the "Happy, Happy New Year's," while the poor are having fun. He is paying out his money like a bank that has a "run."

Every hand that is extended seems to miss his hand with care. And to grasp the leg elastic of the plundered millionaire.

All the "Happy, Happy New Year's" he is envying the poor. Being everybody's victim is not fun they may be sure. Which is why I take exception to the bards and here declare

That the man who needs our pity is the hapless millionaire.

A NEW YEAR'S GIFT.

THE STORY OF A CUBAN CONVICT BY F. A. OBER.

As managing editor of The Patriot, Havana soon became too hot to hold me. Suspected of corresponding with the insurgents, I was hauled before the tyrant Weyler at the palace. This was one morning early. At noon I was aboard a train for Batabano and at night on a steamer for the isle of Pines, the penal settlement for political convicts.

It might have been worse, of course, for the tribunal might have sent me to Ceuta, on the African coast, where chains and a cell would surely have been my portion. Instead, however, I was confined within the borders of a beautiful island, which a bountiful Providence had provided with every gift of nature, and deprived only of my friends and my habitual environment.

Soon after my deportation, having been landed at one of the two ports here and finding the wretched town life not to my taste, I wandered away to the eminence known as the Crystal hill, from the summit of which I could look out over the desolate sea and the forest intervening between it and the plantations. These and the town lay on the plain eastward of the hill. Some distance down its western slope I found the yawning mouth of a cave open in the direction of the sea, its farther end somewhere within the bowels of the earth. It was large and dry, with immense natural pillars supporting a roof hung with stalactites, while a stream of clear water issued from its unexplored interior. In its outer chamber I hung a hammock, a fire of gum wood dispensed warmth and perfume when the nights were chill, and I thought I should be content here for a month at least, or until I could venture back to Havana.

I had money and firearms, and provisions were daily supplied me by a faithful islander whom I had befriended in former times. In the surrounding forest were many plants and animals which could afford me sustenance if my supply from town were to be cut off, and I lacked only daily apprehension of capture and separation, yet were happy.

If only Olivia were here—Olivia, my fiancee! If I had but married her before this unfortunate affair! But, no; this was no place for a tenderly nurtured woman like the daughter of the alcalde of San Cristobal.

I sat in the cave's mouth one day at noon. The heat of the plains was most oppressive, but a breeze from the ocean stirred the leaves of the pines. But for their sighing there was no sound to disturb the deathlike calm till an unfamiliar clashing of branches caused me to start and reach out for my rifle, leaning against a rock nearby.

Distracted as I was I expected nothing less than a visit from the Spanish volunteers who guarded the island, but, looking up, I saw before me the figure of a girl. She was comely and her face shone with intelligence, yet I knew that she belonged to the serving class. It was indeed Carmela, the devoted maid of my fiancee! She smiled and held out a folded paper. At first my bewildered senses could hardly accept this token of her existence. My vision was blurred, the scene before me swam in a mist. But, murmuring vaguely my thanks, I took the letter, opened it and read:

My father has driven me from his house. Do you love me? Will you welcome me? I am near. OLIVIA.

I turned to the maid. "Where—where is she?" I demanded, leaping from my hammock. The girl shrugged her shoulders and pointed to the pines on the brow of the hill, but vouchsafed me no other reply.

I scrambled up the rocks, and there, steadying herself against the trunk of a pine, was my sweetheart! She looked at me timidly, in her eyes a mute inquiry, as if doubtful of the reception I would offer. Not long, however, was she hesitant.

All the "Happy, Happy New Year's," while the poor are having fun. He is paying out his money like a bank that has a "run."

Every hand that is extended seems to miss his hand with care. And to grasp the leg elastic of the plundered millionaire.

All the "Happy, Happy New Year's" he is envying the poor. Being everybody's victim is not fun they may be sure. Which is why I take exception to the bards and here declare

That the man who needs our pity is the hapless millionaire.

EARLY TRAINING.

"It seems strange that they should make such a vulgar display of their wealth."

"Oh, I don't know—he started as a window dresser."—Chicago Journal.

CRYSTAL HILL.

tant. Then, shaking a finger at me with playful gesture, she said: "Oh, Felipe, you did not think I would come, now do you? And now that I have come, do you not think me overbold, or are you glad to see me, to have me bide awhile with you? Now, as to the hereafter—well, we must allow events to shape our course. Now lead me to your cavern. I am tired—faint."

While the maid set the cave in order and my beloved reclined in my hammock, I prepared a simple repast, which, with cool water from a spring that gushed from the hillside near, I soon set before her.

After she had partaken and had been refreshed by a siesta she joined me at the cave's mouth, where we sat hand in hand until the plain below was all in shadow, only the white trunks of the palms standing out pallid as ghosts in the gathering gloom.

During the week that followed Olivia and her maid occupied the inner chamber of the cave, which was sacred to their privacy, while I guarded the cave's mouth.

THE SKELETON OF 1897.

Half sinking, half swimming, he slips from the land. The bell rope is clinched in his tremulous hand. His last sun has set in the billowy tomb. The clock of the months marks the moments of doom.

Oh, visitant ghostly, we bid thee farewell! But just for one moment withhold thy last knell. To tell us the fate of our lost summer flowers, our love songs, our bird notes, our blossoming hours.

Full many sweet hopes we've intrusted to thee. Their realization—oh, when shall we see? And will you not tell us in what diadems The fragments are set of our lost, shattered gems?

The path we've walked with thee has been as uneven,

But did it not slant just a little toward heaven? The sheaves we have garnered to scatter abroad. Dost know that they're safe in the storehouse of God?

Still mute? Oh, departing year, we care not whether Thy heart be as fickle and false as thy weather! Go, sink with thy storms and thy floods past recall. And let the eternal waves cover them all.

The past and the future clasp hands over them. As o'er thy head surges the turbulent sea. Thine own nerveless fingers must ring out the knell. The clock strikes, the bell tolls. Farewell, oh, farewell!

—Mary A. Benson.

THE WORD JANUARY.

Janus, the God of Gates and Avenues. Historical Superstition.

"Tis he! The two fac'd Janus comes to view!"

According to mythology, Janus was the god of gates and avenues and in that character held a key in his right hand and a rod in his left to symbolize his opening and closing the year; sometimes he bore the number 300 in one hand and 55 in the other, the number of its days in the annual lunar year. At other times he was represented by four heads and placed in a temple of four equal sides with a door and three windows in each side, as emblems of the four seasons and the 12 months over which he presided.

Verstegan states that the Saxons called this period wolf month, or wolf month, because the wolves of ancient forests, impelled by hunger during the season, were wont to prowl about human habitations and attack man himself, the inferior animals on whom they usually preyed having retired or perished from the inclemency of the weather. It is an established fact that expanded civilization has moderated the rigors of winter.

The Saxons, in a more poetical sense, called it Guili Altera or Altera Yula, signifying "after Christmas." In illuminated calendars prefixed to missals or service books January was frequently depicted as a man with fagots or a woodman's ax, shivering and blowing breath upon his fingers. Spenser, in his "Faerie Queene," thus describes the popular illustration:

Then came old January, wrapped well In many weeds to keep the cold away. Yet did he quake and quiver, like to quell. And blow his nayles to warm them, if he may. For they were numb'd with holding all the day.

An hatchet keen with which he fell'd wood And from the trees did lop the needless spray.

The gentle, loving Charles Lamb in quiet differentiation thus begins one excellent paper: "Every man hath two birth-days; two days, at least, in every year which set him upon revolving the lapse of time as it affects his mortal duration. The one is that which, in an especial manner, he termeth his. In the gradual desuetude of old observances, this of solemnizing our proper birthday hath nearly passed away or is left to children who reflect nothing at all about the matter nor understand anything beyond the cake and orange."

But the birth of a new year is of an interest too wide to be permitted by king or cobbler. No one ever regarded the 1st of January with indifference. It is that from which all date their time and count upon what is left. It is the nativity of our common Adam." ALBERT P. SOUTHWICK.

The Place Vendome in Paris.

The Paris correspondent of a London paper says that, though always stately and imposing, the Place Vendome is by no means a lively part of Paris. It has retained through long years the characteristics for which it was noted in the reign of the grand monarque, Louis XIV, for whom it was planned and laid out. Of late a few good shops have appeared here and there among the houses on the place, and it is proposed to add to the number of these business establishments. Hence in a comparatively brief space of time the buildings around Napoleon's column will be brilliantly diversified, and stately monotony will disappear. The Place Vendome may in a few years, or even less, be able to distance the Rue de la Paix as a locality for afternoon shopping, tea drinking and flirtation.

New Year's in Wales.

Some years since children in the south of Wales brought from the spring on New Year's morning a jug of water, singing meanwhile this curious refrain:

Here we bring the new clear From the well so clear For to worship God with This happy New Year. Sing Levez dew, sing Cres dew, The water and the wine; The seven bright gold wires And the bugles they do shine. Sing reign of fair maid With gold upon her toe, Open you the west door And let the old year go. Sing reign of fair maid With gold upon her chin, Open you the east door And let the New Year in.

AN EMERGENCY.

Being an Episode of Holiday Shopping In a Great City.

The old man had "billygoat" whiskers, and he wore a brown hickory shirt with white agate buttons, but his heart was in the right place.

It was in a city store—not one of the swell stores, but a place where they kept all sorts of toys and sold them cheap.

An old Irish woman in a shawl and hood had just come in and she stood fumbling with bare, trembling hands at the wrappings of the parcel which she carried. At last she undid the knots in the string and she took from the paper a little red wagon with one wheel off.

Stepping up to the dapper floorwalker she said timidly: "Tis a gift for Jamie, sir, all Oi can git 'im, an' it be broke— the wheel bees clane off it. Oi don't want to be puttin' the blame on to no wan, but it must 'a' be'n done afore Oi tuk it, fur Oi held it so tinderloike that it cu'dn't 'a' broke."

"Can't be helped. We are not responsible for breakage after customers have received goods. Couldn't have been done here. Saleslady would have noticed it."

There was a disappointed look on the woman's face, and her lip quivered as she began to tie up the parcel.

The old man in the hickory shirt stepped forward. "Hyur, lemme see it. Um-m, nut's off'n th' wheel. Young man, you kin fetch me a nut to fit that ax."

"But we—this is not a repair shop."

"I say, you fetch me a nut. You kin take one off'n one o' them other carts, an' you be quick about it."

"But we don't"—Here one of the shop girls came up and whispered: "Better get it. That old man just bought $60 worth of goods." Then the dapper fellow went away and soon returned with the required bit of iron.

The old man coolly took his huge complicated jackknife and opened out a small monkey wrench, with which he fixed the wheel. Then he wrapped up the parcel bunglingly and handed it to the old woman.

She took it with trembling hands. "Oi'm obligeid to ye, sir," said she, and hugging the bulky bundle to her breast she went out into the street and disappeared among the eager, rushing, jostling crowd of shoppers.—Marie Moore Marsh.

Amused Them.

"How did your French go in Paris Mrs. Parvenu?"

"Beautiful! They were really tickled with it."—Detroit Free Press.

It is estimated that during the present century no less than 30,000,000 of civilized men have perished in war.

Some People Did Not Escape
the Last Grand Jury.

ONLY THOSE WHO WERE IN JAIL

Were Called to Account by Prosecutor
Speaker—The Others Will Have to
Answer Charges Against Them When the Next Jury Is Called.

C. A. Speaker will next Monday step down from the position he has occupied for six years, and will be succeeded by Jason H. Brookes, of this city, but before he goes the prosecutor makes the announcement that all the criminal business of the county was not disposed of by the last grand jury.

In some manner the impression has gained ground that the special grand jury had ignored a number of important cases, when the truth is that these cases were not considered at all, and the accused individuals will be called upon to answer to the next regular grand jury. They are at present out on bail.

The special was called for the purpose of considering the charges against those parties who were in jail and could not obtain bail. It was looked upon as a stroke of economy to have them disposed of as soon as possible, since it would relieve the county of the expense of keeping them until the next grand jury should begin business.

FACTS ABOUT 1898.

Some of the Things Shown by a Glance
at the Calendar.

The year 1898 will begin and end on Saturday.

It will have six eclipses, of which only Jan. 7 and Dec. 27 will be visible to North America.

Lincoln's birthday will fall on Saturday and Washington's birthday on Tuesday, Decoration day and Fourth of July on Monday, and Christmas on Sunday.

Labor day will be on Sept. 5. Thanksgiving should be Nov. 24.

First Sunday in Lent, Feb. 27. Palm Sunday, April 3. Easter Sunday, April 10.

The Jewish year 5659 will begin at sunset of Friday, Sept. 16.

On July 4 the 123d year of American independence will begin.

The four seasons will begin on these days in 1898: Spring, March 20; summer, June 21; autumn, Sept. 22; winter, Dec. 21.

APPRECIATE MRS. SOUTHWORTH

The Trustees of the Home Made Her a Present.

The friends in the city will hear with pleasure that the board of trustees of the Fairmount home, of which Hon. David Boyce is a member, have presented Mrs. M. M. Southworth with a handsome wrap, a token of the high regard in which the lady is held by the governing body of that institution. Mrs. Southworth devotes a great part of her time to the scores of little ones under her care, and is among the most successful matrons filling a position of that kind in the country, a fact the trustees have not been slow in recognizing.

THE HOSPITAL PROJECT.

Will Be Taken Up at Once by the Committee.

Now that the holidays are almost over the committee having the hospital in charge will take up the matter where it was dropped.

Secretary Keiffer said this morning that they were all going to make good resolutions now, and it might be a meeting would be held next week.

EXCURSION RATES.

Following the annual custom, ticket agents of the Pennsylvania lines will sell excursion tickets Dec. 24, 25 and 31, 1897, and Jan. 1, 1898, for the Christmas and New Year holidays. Tickets will not be sold to adults for less than 25 cents, nor to children for less than 15 cents. Return limit of excursion tickets will include Jan. 4, 1898. For rates, time of trains and further information please apply to nearest ticket agent of the Pennsylvania lines.

Get Out of the Cold.

You may quickly pass from a cold to a warm climate via Pennsylvania lines from East Liverpool, the direct tourist rate route through Chicago and St. Louis to California, and through Cincinnati or Louisville to Florida and the south. ## BOUND OVER TO COURT

Harrison Rinehart Was Heard Yesterday.

ASSAULT AND BATTERY CHARGED

Another Chapter In the Trouble Between John Rinehart and His Son Was Passed Through at City Hall—Bail Was Fixed at $100.

Harrison Rinehart was heard in the court of Mayor Gilbert yesterday afternoon on a charge of assault and battery. The charge was made by his father, John Rinehart, and is the outcome of the row at the Second street stable where the son was struck in the face by a pitchfork and received two wounds which for a time promised to be serious.

Harrison Rinehart was represented by Solicitor Grosshans, and the witnesses were Price Mountford, Harvey Barnhart, David Brown, Will Ferguson and Edward Kelley. The story as given in the NEWS REVIEW was told, the accused showing that he had been assaulted and defended himself. Mayor Gilbert bound him to court in the sum of $100. Bail was given.

A PROSPEROUS COUNCIL

WELLSVILLE.

BIG MILL PROJECT NOW

Another Matter Before the Board.

PEOPLE HAVE BEEN LIBERAL

But Those Who Know the Particulars Will Not Talk Although They Are Thankful. Other Projects Are Now in Sight—All the News of Wellsville.

The town is still talking pottery, but some other things have come in sight, and the opinion is by no means general that the plant is the only thing Wellsville is to have.

"The board of trade has four or five good propositions," said one of the officials of that body, "but we will not decide which one to take until we have the money in hand. One proposition is for a mill, and it will be a good one if we get it. I cannot now say whether we will be able to land the prize. The people have been very kind and liberal, and the board feels gratified at the progress made. I cannot now give anything definite for publication."

A meeting of the soliciting committee was held last night, but as one member had forgotten to bring along his paper the exact amount collected could not be determined. It is said to be almost what the board desires.

In Justice Courts.

I. B. Clark has entered suit against the Wellsville Fair association to obtain $150 for services as secretary of the association. The case will be tried next Monday before Justice Riley.

Joseph E. Baughman has sued the Cleveland and Pittsburgh railroad for $1,995 for malicious arrest. The case is in the hands of W. D. Lones.

Officer Lancaster arrested two train jumpers, Marshall Stevenson and T. H. Lewey, last evening. The men gave their residence as Pittsburgh. They were given a hearing this afternoon, and fined $1 and costs each.

Shop News.

Passenger engine No 607 was completed and sent out today.

George Marshall, J. W. Snyder and D. J. Hottell are off duty on account of sickness.

Mr. Wehner leaves tonight for Allegheny where he will spend several days with relatives.

Personal.

Miss Maude Bunting, who has been the guest of Miss Emma Bunting for a few days, returned to her home in Cleveland this morning.

Miss Mary Cope was a Pittsburgh visitor this morning.

John Madison, of Salineville, is visiting friends in town.

Mr. Haugh left for Irondale this morning.

EVANGELISTIC.

This Gentleman Possesses a Tongue Tipped With Eloquence.

He is now in East Liverpool and claims the acquaintance of a large circle of residents. He is very eloquent in argument and conversation, and has been assured that his true life work is in the evangelistic line. He has been taken at times as a minister, and at other times recognized as a priest, on account of his benevolent and reverential bearing, and the winsomeness of his smiling physiognomy. There is now a possibility that he will enter either the evangelistic or lecture field. We dare not give his name in full, for fear of offending him, as his modesty does not court newspaper notoriety; but the citizens of East Liverpool may ere long point with pride to him as a representative of our pottery center.

THE FIRST DAY

Will Be Observed Very Generally In Town.

New Year will be generally observed in the city.

The banks will be closed, and holiday hours will be observed at the postoffice, and the freight depot will be closed.

The Lutheran church will close the old year tonight with services beginning at 7:30 o'clock.

A watch meeting will be held at the Salvation Army tonight. Dick Albright, of Palestine, will have charge.

Watch meetings will be held at the First M. E. church and the African M. E. church.

AN OLD RESIDENT

Died Yesterday Afternoon Near Calcutta.

Thomas W. Huston, one of the oldest residents of St. Clair township, died at his home near Calcutta yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock. He was aged 84 years. George Huston and Mrs. Fawcett Anderson, of this city, are members of the family, and Columbus and Homer Huston, his other sons, reside in St. Clair township.

The funeral will take place Saturday morning at 11 o'clock, Rev. A. D. McColough officiating. Interment will be at Long's Run cemetery.

CALLED IN THE POLICE

To Investigate a Case of Faith Cure.

NOT A VERY SERIOUS MATTER

It Caused Much Comment Among People Who Heard the Particulars, But Developed Into Nothing of a Sensational Nature.

A number of people in the city were talking this morning of a matter which gave promise of some sensational developments, but they were all disappointed.

It seems that a man, who is well known, became ill some time ago, and his friends among the faith curists decided to see what they could do for him. A number of prayer services were held at his home, and he did not recover. At length the matter was reported to the police and today the matter was investigated, but without anything being brought out that would prompt any movement on the part of the law. Some startling stories regarding the possible outcome of the matter were in circulation this morning.

NO GAME TOMORROW.

Rovers Have Canceled the McDonald Date.

The Rovers last evening booked the McDonald team for a game at West End park tomorrow afternoon but were compelled to cancel this morning owing to the snow. The team will be secured for a game later in the season.

The league met last evening and decided that the Homestead team had no grounds for protesting their game with McDonald. The protest of the Marchant team against Jeannette was decided in their favor and the game will be played over tomorrow.

The Irish Corners, managed by H. McCurran, want to play the Alvins a game of football for love or money.

George Carey is in receipt of a letter from Louisville asking for his picture to place in a group picture of the club. He has not received a contract for the team, as yet but expects to hear from them next week.

CHURCH CHIMES.

A Nation of Medicine Takers.

It is an accepted fact that the American people are the greatest users of medicines of one sort or another on the face of the earth. Imaginary ills make up a large part of man's earthly troubles.

Some people need only to read the vivid description of some chronic disease and they are at once victims to the complaint in question. Many patent medicine venders make use of this peculiarity and lead some people to believe that their tired feeling comes from their blood not being rich and red. Millions would be saved and our general health would be better if we would take medicine only when really needed and then get a remedy specially prepared for the disease with which we are suffering.

As an illustration, when you have sore throat, there can't be any imagination about it. Your throat hurts; probably is covered with white ulcerated spots, and you know you need a remedy. Use good judgment. Get a cure put up for this one purpose. There is such a remedy. Tonsilite is its name, and it is a wonder in its field. Being put up for this one class of diseases, it cures quickly, surely, and many times as if by magic. No family can afford to be without Tonsilite in the home, as it is a certain cure for Sore Throat, Sore Mouth, Croup and Quinsy. Ask your neighbors who have used it. All druggists sell Tonsilite. 25 and 50 cents.

Very Much About the Senatorial Situation.

REPUBLICAN CAUCUS TOMORROW

It Will Show the Strength of the Contending Factions, but Kurtz Will Not Give Away All His Hand at Present. Blaqué Wilson's Letter.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

COLUMBUS, Dec. 31.—The state capital has been the scene of much political activity during the past week, preliminary to the meeting of the seventy-third general assembly. Since last Monday every train has brought its quota of members of the legislature, candidates for place and politicians. Owing to the close political complexion of this legislature, great interest is attached to the session, and there is promise of lively times about the old state house this winter. By Thursday nearly all of the members had arrived, and the lobbies of the Neil house have been crowded. The first formalities of the session will occur Saturday evening in the hall of the house, where will be held the Republican caucus. This caucus will consider first the matter of United States senator, and then the organization of the two branches of the assembly.

Owing to the fact that Mr. Charles Kurtz and some of his friends are making an effort to defeat Senator Hanna for re-election, the senatorship has overshadowed all other questions in the preliminary maneuvering. Mr. Kurtz and his friends claim that they have enough votes to defeat the senator, and there are indications that they have made overtures to the Democrats for a combine for mutual benefit. The Kurtz people and the Democrats also seem to be working together for the control of the organization of both branches of the legislature. Their program is to cause a deadlock and tire out the Hanna organization, which is now in the ascendency.

On the other hand Col. C. W. F. Dick, who is here leading the forces of Mr. Hanna, claims the senator has enough votes pledged to elect, and he asserts confidently that the opposition will be beaten before the day of election. The fact is the whole situation seems to be involved in much mystery, and both sides will know more about it after the caucus. If any Republican members absent themselves from the caucus it will be taken as a sign of disaffection, yet it is not likely that Mr. Kurtz will make a showing of his whole hand by keeping all of his friends away.

The formal opening of the legislature will take place Monday morning, when both branches will be called to order at 10 o'clock. In the house it is expected that the Hon. Alexander Boxwell, of Warren county, will be elected speaker, and the indications are that Hon. John L. Means, of Jefferson, will be speaker pro tem. John R. Malloy will be elected chief clerk of the house, but for the other positions there are more than a score of candidates and it is impossible to make predictions until after the caucus.

The senate promises some excitement in the organization, as it is a tie politically, and one of the Republicans, Senator Voight, of Cincinnati, was elected on the Democratic fusion ticket. Both sides are claiming that they will organize the senate, and the matter will probably be decided by a compromise of some sort.

The balloting for United States senator does not take place until Tuesday, Jan. 11, on which date the two houses take separate ballots. On Wednesday at noon both houses meet in joint session and take a joint ballot. If there is no election the process will be repeated from day to day until a decision is reached or the legislature adjourns.

Governor Bushnell's second inauguration occurs on Monday, Jan. 10, and preparations are making for elaborate and imposing ceremonies. There will be a great parade of military and civil organizations and political clubs, and the committee now have information which leads them to believe that there will be about 6,000 men in line. The parade will be reviewed by the governor, the inaugural ceremony will be held in the state house, and a reception will be held in the senate chamber in the evening.

A NICE LITTLE PLAN

The English and Germans Have For the Year.

THEY WANT TO BEAT AMERICA

They Would Compel a Reduction of Wages and a Strike on This Side of the Water, and Then Step In and Capture the Market—The New York View.

Some time ago the story was told in this paper that the English and German manufacturers of crockery would compel a reduction of wages in America, bring on a strike and then take hold of the market. The tale has reached New York, and a trade paper's correspondent puts it in this way:

"The English and German earthenware manufacturers have arrived at a common understanding in regard to their plan of campaign during the coming year. Your correspondent learns, on the authority of a well known crockery importer here, that, in order to attract American trade and defeat the purposes of the Dingley tariff law in respect to earthenware importations, there will be a reduction of prices along the whole line in the European potteries. Wages will have to be cut down and other running expenses diminished, but at all sacrifices, the output of English, French, and German factories must be placed on the American market under such favorable conditions that Trenton and East Liverpool will be compelled to follow suit and reduce wages or else abandon the field altogether. It is an astute and plausible plan and may succeed unless American manufacturers get together and take steps to defeat the scheme.

"Apart from the matter of wages, everything looks bright and encouraging for the American potter. Home made crockery has greatly improved, not only in quality but in popular favor. Ordinary earthenware for the people at large is far superior to similar grades of goods made in foreign countries and, so far, there is little or no difference in prices between the native and imported articles. The only possible way for our friends on the other side to beat us is to do exactly what they propose to do in the reduction of wages. They argue that such a course will compel a similar reduction in the United States and that, if wages are lowered here, there will be a big strike which must result in the closing of the potteries, thus leaving the American crockery market in the absolute control of the importers and their principals in Europe. Whatever may be said, one way or the other, on this important subject, it is evident that it is timely and expedient for American manufacturers to get together and devise such methods and purposes as their common interests demand."

DIED SUDDENLY.

Heart Disease Caused the Demise of Thomas H. Fowler.

Thomas Hanson Fowler died suddenly at his home in Grant district yesterday, aged 73 years. Heart disease was the cause.

Deceased had been a resident of Hancock county all his life, and was very well known in this city. He was a brother of W. B. Fowler, of this city, and Mrs. Samuel Mick, of Glasgow. Smith Fowler, J. Q. A. Fowler and Patterson Fowler are nephews and Mrs. Peter Allison is a niece. A number of other relatives reside here.

The funeral will take place from his late residence tomorrow. Interment will be in Flats cemetery.

WANTED TO DIE.

A Vanport Man Was Weary of This Life.

Wm. Lentz, a well known young man of Vanport, aged 33, who has been suffering with typhoid fever, last evening attempted to cut his throat with a razor.

Friends managed to wrest the weapon from him but not before he had succeeded in inflicting a dangerous wound. The physicians who were called are not yet able to state whether his injuries will be fatal.

LESS THAN COST.

Housekeepers can get old papers, suitable for placing under carpets or trimming shelves, at much less than cost of material by calling at the News Review office.

IS VERY ILL.

Miss Heskie Hays, daughter of B. D. Hays, is very ill with typhoid fever, in East End. If her condition will allow it she will be removed to the home of her parents on Jethro road tomorrow.

KNOCKED OUT A LAW

Plumbers Can Rest Themselves In Peace.

THE BOARD NEVER MOVED

To Make Them Obey the Measure Passed by the Last Legislature, but There Was Always Danger That It Would Be Brought Out.

The plumbers of the city can rest themselves in peace for an Akron judge has decided unconstitutional the law which compels them to take out a license before they can work.

The law was passed for the purpose of keeping out of the business those persons who know next to nothing of plumbing. It compelled plumbers to take out a license, and only those possessing a knowledge of the trade could be thus favored. The Akron case was tried in common pleas court, the judge holding that it was unlawful to make a plumber working for himself take out a license when the representative of any plumbing company might do the same thing, leaving the concern the right to employ competent or incompetent plumbers as they saw fit.

The law was never enforced in this city. The board of health discussed it several times, but it went no farther. Unless the decision is reversed by higher courts nothing more will be heard of it.

A HANDSOME EMBLEM.

J. B. Wickery Was Honored by His Friends Among the Elks.

J. B. Wickery, commercial agent of the Northern Pacific road with offices in Pittsburg, was in the city yesterday the guest of Agent Adam Hill. He said he had booked a lot of business for next year, and the outlook was very promising.

Mr. Wickery is a member of the Allegheny lodge of Elks, and recently received the office of district deputy. When installed in office Mr. Wickery was presented with a handsome emblem of the order which contains 147 diamonds, one weighing two carats. Other jewels are set in the face, and it is a handsome piece of work.

Didn't Like the Town.

A stranger who has been doing business in the city for several days remarked to a friend in one of the hotels this morning:

"This town is all right in a business way, and I guess the people who live here like it, but it's for the reason that people get along with a thing when they have never known anything better."

Some people who heard the conversation wondered what particular part of the world managed to worry along with that gentleman's presence.

Delaney Didn't Appear Well.

Jack Delaney had a little argument with an individual in one of the uptown alleys last night, and as a result was much the worse for looks shortly afterward.

He went to the fire station and washed off the effects of the battle. When the mud was scraped from him it was seen he had received a cut in the head and his cheeks were also badly scratched. He refused to tell the cause of the affair.

Attractions at the Grand.

Guy Brothers and their minstrels some well recommended to the Grand tomorrow night, and they should be greeted by a crowded house. They are well known to theater goers in this city.

The "American Girl" is a play well calculated to entertain any audience. The company is strong and the piece intensely interesting. It will be presented at the Grand next Monday evening.

Guarded Against Fire.

While it was not generally known Manager Norris last night while the veriscope was at the opera house took every precaution against fire.

Fireman Terrence was there with a Babcock and ready to act at a moment's notice.

The performance attracted a good crowd, and it was not hard to determine that Corbett was the favorite of the audience.

Back to Work.

Joseph M. Cartwright will return next Monday to the University of Michigan. Frank Ikirt will resume his studies at the Western Reserve Medical college Monday morning.

Thomas M. McClure will leave Tuesday for Adrian college. Geo. H. Kelley will return to the Cleveland law school next week.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

Elmer A. Albright, of East Palestine, is visiting friends in this city.

John Rreak and his friends will dance at Brunt's tomorrow afternoon and evening.

Mrs. Will Reed, who has been ill at her home in West Sixth street, is somewhat improved.

The social to have been held at the First Presbyterian church this evening has been postponed.

Miss Hattie Thomas will entertain the Bachelor Girls at her home in Seventh street next Monday evening.

A number of sports of the city witnessed a lively cocking main on the Virginia side yesterday afternoon.

During last night a freight train killed a large dog at the freight depot. The owner of the dog could not be found.

Homer Swift, son of Rev. C. F. Swift, will this evening entertain a number of his friends at his home in West Fourth street.

The new local directory of the telephone company has been completed and will be presented to the subscribers early next week.

Stock taking at the East Palestine pottery has been completed, and the factory will commence operations in full next week.

A small amount of business was handled at the freight depot yesterday, but only a few cars were sent out from the outbound platform.

Henry Koch has severed his connection as traveling agent for a local concern, and after Jan. 1 will go on the road for a Pittsburg business house.

Miss Mary Thompson entertained a number of friends at the home of F. B. Chambers, Mulberry street, East End, last evening. A pleasant time was spent.

H. D. Wiley, who has been sick in Matamoras for some time, returned to the city last evening and this morning resumed his duties at the passenger station.

Among the sights seen this morning soon after there was light to see anything, was a plain drunk wandering along Fifth street. He was having a lot of fun with the snowflakes.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bell yesterday afternoon at their home in Jethro street gave a 3 o'clock dinner in honor of Bishop Lee. A large number of guests were present.

The train due at 10:03 this morning was delayed 30 minutes by heavy freight traffic on the Ft. Wayne road. The noon train was also 30 minutes late. The snow was the cause.

This morning in Sixth street a wagon ran over one of Bill Farmer's numerous canines but the dog was not seriously injured. Bill was very angry but comforted the dog as best he could, while he berated the driver of the wagon for his carelessness.

Among the most pleasant events of the season was the card party given yesterday afternoon from 2 to 6 o'clock by Mrs. W. E. Wells at her home in Thompson place. The guests numbered 24. Dainty refreshments were served at 5 o'clock.

J. F. Constans, eastern traveling freight agent of the Frisco line, was in the city this morning on business. He said that this was the last town he would visit this year, and the business he secured this morning was among the largest orders he had ever received.

Frank Hawley, of Cleveland. Miss Hortense Watts, of Sewickley. Mr. and Mrs. Francis Brown, of Buffalo. Miss Martha Medill, Miss Mary Graham and Miss Lena Dent, of Belpre. Miss Clara Henry and Miss Florence Chandler, of Steubenville, are guests at the Goodwin residence, Broadway, and will this evening attend the annual ball of the Phoenix club.

CAN COLLECT THE FEES

Even If His Salary Was Increased.

NIGHT NOT THE FIRST YEAR

But if the Mayor of the City Was to Decide That His Second Term Was His Last the Opportunity Would Be Open to Him.

The opponents of the salary ordinance, recently introduced into council, declare that no power in possession of that body can prevent the mayor from collecting the fees allowed him by the state, and to place him on a salary of $1,000 a year, would simply mean that his income had been increased by that amount, and the city would derive no especial benefit.

The argument put forward is that the state law governs almost every violation of the statutes. If a man is seen drunk on the street and the police arrest him he is tried under the state law. The city gets the fine, but the fees allowed by the law go to the mayor, marshal and arresting officer. If he was tried under a city ordinance the municipality would derive no more benefit from the arrest than it does at present and the mayor would get the same amount. It is true the mayor has the privilege of trying the case under the city ordinance or the state law, but they argue, where is the official who would throw away his fee when the law allowed him to have it?

As the law is at present there is no means of getting around it. Anything the council may do in the way of making laws must be in accordance with the statutes, and to say in an ordinance that all fees were to go to the city treasury would but serve to make council ridiculous, for the measure would not be worth anything more than the paper on which it was written. The statutes say the mayor can have those fees, and to the mayor they would go.

One official who is opposed to the plan says that the mayor, elected with the understanding that he was to have a salary each year, would likely stand by the platform during his first term of office, but when elected for the second time he would in all probability avail himself of the loophole in the ordinance, and make as much out of his office as possible. In other words, he would not only draw his salary with regularity, but he would put the fees allowed him by law down in his pocket, and there is no power to prevent it, because he would be doing just what the law allowed him to do.

Council has been going over these facts within the past few days, and has found that it would be useless to pass the ordinance now before council. It is therefore probable that nothing more will be heard of the matter in its present form. It is probable, however, that something along that line will later be done.

The ordinance allowing council to select the chief of police is observed in the same light. Under the law the marshall has all the authority that would be given a chief of police, chosen by council. The only perceptible difference is that the matter would be taken out of the hands of the people and handed over to council. That is five men, a majority of council, would virtually do what had before been done by 3,000 men. Whether this would be better is the only question. Those who oppose the ordinance say that it would not, since it allows every opportunity for deals and arrangements, and they are not the most desirable things in municipal government. The other side of the question is that the marshal can do a great deal with the police force if he desires. He can keep them in line, and if they do not obey the rules they can be reported to police committee and from there their case should go to council. It is held, however, that a complete revision of the police regulations would be a very good thing.

A SPLENDID EVENT

Was the Banquet Given by the Carroll Club.

The Carroll club last evening celebrated their first anniversary in the spacious rooms in the Stevenson building, and the affair was one of the most pleasant of the season.

The rooms were very tastefully decorated in purple and white, the colors of the club, while potted plants in profusion added greatly to their beauty.

The early part of the evening an unusually fine musical program was rendered, and excellent addresses were made by Attorney John McGarry, Father Halligan, Martin Gill and a number of others.

The party then retired to the banquet room, where a table laden with all the delicacies had been prepared and 140 plates were laid.

ALL PARTIES PLEASED

Local Men and Pittsburgh Capitalists Negotiating.

SOMETHING GOOD IS EXPECTED

The Project Set on Foot Last Week Is the Liveliest Kind of a Plan, and From Present Indications Will Soon Reach a Focus.

A gentleman, who is in a position to know, stated last evening, that the negotiations now pending between Pittsburgh capitalists and parties in this city would, from the outlook, be brought to a focus within a week or two.

The scheme on foot is for the building of a manufacturing plant. The gentlemen who were in the city one day last week, and of whom mention in this paper was made, have had several conferences with Liverpool men, but what has been the nature of these meetings, is being kept a secret.

It is known that one of the prime movers in the scheme was in Pittsburgh Tuesday, and had a talk with the capitalists, and it is said he returned to the city much pleased with his visit. The architect who was in the city with the Pittsburgh parties, and who has submitted several plans of buildings to the men, is working on other new ones, and by the middle of January the plant may be well under way.

The project is surrounded by the usual mystery, and the projectors will give out nothing for publication.

THE MYSTIC MIDGETS.

The Famous Midgets and Fairies Will Arrive Next Week.

On Friday and Saturday evenings of next week Professor Harper will again demonstrate to our people that the children of our city are as progressive and up-to-date as anywhere else. The Liliputian carnival of nations which gave so much enjoyment and amusement last season will be reproduced. The already large cast has been increased, and every effort has been made to make each part as strong as possible. The special scenery which was omitted the last time will be used, and adds greatly to the production.

The children taking part in entertainments of this kind reap the benefit of much special training, not only in singing and speaking, but also in learning to be graceful, as the result will prove.

Professor Harper has offered a prize of two pairs of skates, the finest in the city, for the boy and girl selling the largest number of tickets, and a second prize of a pair of fine shoes to the one selling the next largest number.

READY TO START.

All the Potters Have Plenty of Orders.

Improvements at the potters are being rushed, and by next Monday morning it is believed that all of them will be in operation.

The fact that a great many salesmen have not yet left the city seems to have little to do with the situation, since all the concerns in the city have orders with which to start the new year.

Two Good Attractions.

Guy Brothers' minstrels are the attraction at the Grand, Saturday night, and an excellent performance is promised.

"The American Girl" will doubtless draw a large crowd to the Grand next Monday evening, since it is an attraction with a high place in the season's list.

Fitz-Corbett tonight, Grand.

An All Day Meeting.

New Year's day will be celebrated with unusual ceremony at the Floating Bethel. The services will continue throughout the day, including baptism, communion, and the washing of feet. A number of ministers of the faith will be present.

Travel Is Light.

Travel both east and west on the Cleveland and Pittsburgh road was very light this morning. All the trains arrived on time except the one west, due at 8:20, which was 15 minutes late. The delay was caused by a flag at Rochester.

See Fitzsimmons tonight.

LESS THAN COST.

Housekeepers can get old papers, suitable for placing under carpets or trimming shelves, at much less than cost of material by calling at the News Review office.

Looking Forward.

A Cleveland clergyman who is not given to putting on a long face either in his pulpit or out of it says that before he came here from the south he was one day asked by a young man to unite him with the woman of his choice in the holy bonds of wedlock upon the evening of a certain day.

"I am very sorry," said the reverend gentleman, "but I shall be out of town upon that day."

The young man was crestfallen, said that he had set his heart upon having that particular minister perform the ceremony and asked if there was no possible way in which it could be arranged.

"I thought the matter over," said the clergyman in recounting the experience, "and finally agreed to return for the express purpose of complying with his wishes. He was greatly pleased, assured me that it was very kind of me and hinted that I would be well repaid for my trouble and consideration.

"So upon the day set for the ceremony I traveled nearly 200 miles, paid out $8.50 for my railroad ticket and other accommodations and gave the happy couple one of the best marriage services in my repertory.

"After the ceremony the groom came to me, blushing furiously, slipped a $5 bill into my hand and in all seriousness said:

"This is all I have to give you now, but I hope to be able to do better next time."

"I was $3.50 out of pocket on the transaction, and I guess I'll let him hunt up somebody else 'next time.' —Cleveland Leader.

The Early London Omnibus.

When the queen came to the throne, omnibuses were a new but already popular institution. They were longer, narrower and lower than the present ones and had no seats on the roof. The passengers were carefully shut in by a door at the end, as if to make quite sure of them, once they were captured, till they had paid their fares. On a little round perch behind stood the conductor or "cad," hanging on by a leather loop passed over his arm. Sixpence was the usual bus fare 60 years ago, whether you went from beginning to end of the journey or only a few hundred yards. As there was very little regulation of the street traffic of London in those days, if the bus was filled up at starting it went like a fire engine in order to get in an extra journey, but otherwise it crawled and pottered about till the requisite number was obtained.

Each omnibus was licensed only for a particular route. It paid the stage-coach duty of £5 when first started and a shilling a year for keeping the license in force, besides a mileage duty, varying with the number of passengers it would hold, but coming to about threepence per mile on the average.—Gentleman's Magazine.

A Mean Dog.

He was a small boy—not such a very small boy—in an out of town school. He had written a composition. It was upon the subject of dogs. Now the teacher of the school was a man, and he was not popular. He was what the boys called "mean." They disliked him thoroughly, from the tips of his shining shoes to the ends of his pompadour combed hair. In the composition there was a story of a dog. It was the story of a very mean dog, and as the composer of the literary effort came to the last line he read it emphatically and with great distinctness of utterance, and the hearts of all the other small boys in the room, as they listened, quaked, half with delight and half with fear, knowing what was to follow, and gazing, fascinated, at the upright coiffure of the master, as the reader ended, "And that dog was so mean that his hair stood on end." —New York Times.

What Is Style?

The fact that we use the word "style" in speaking of architecture and sculpture, painting and music, dancing, play acting and cricket, that we can apply it to the careful achievements of the housebreaker and the poisoner, and to the spontaneous animal movements of the limbs of man or beast, is the noblest of unconscious tributes to the faculty of letters. Morals, philosophy and aesthetic, mood and conviction, creed and whim, habit, passion and demonstration—what art but the art of literature admits the entrance of all these and guards them from the suddenness of mortality? All style is gesture, the gesture of the mind and of the soul. Other gestures change and fit; this is the ultimate and enduring revelation of personality.—"Style," by Walter Raleigh.

How Browning Read Political Matter.

I have read the newspapers only through Robert's eyes. He reads them in a room sacred from the foot of woman. And this is not always satisfactory, as whenever Robert falls into a state of disgust with any political party he throws the whole subject over. Every now and then he ignores France altogether, and I, who am more tolerant and more curious, find myself suspended over a hiatus. I ask about Thiers' speech. "Thiers is a rascal," he says. "I make a point of not reading a word of Thiers." M. Prudhon, then? "Prudhon is a madman. Who cares for Prudhon?" The president? "The president is an ass not worth thinking of." And so we treat of politics.—Letters of Elizabeth Barrett Browning.

Terrible Tragedy Over Board Bill.

CAMDEN, N. J., Dec. 30.—Eton Johnson, aged 22 years, attempted to murder Ernst Fellows and Mrs. Fellows and their 13-year-old son, Frank, by shooting them at their home, 226 Erie street. He dangerously wounded Fellows and inflicted a slight wound in the boy's thigh and a flesh wound on Mrs. Fellows. Johnson then blew out his brains. They had held his trunk for back board.

Van Wyck Opposed to Jollification.

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—Mayor-elect Van Wyck objects to the board of aldermen's plans for celebrating the birth of Greater New York on New Year's eve. He wants to go into office without any demonstration. Most of the contracts for the jollification have been made, however, and it will probably be carried out.

Important Arrest Expected.

LONDON, Dec. 30.—Inspector Corry of the Scotland Yard detective department is making inquiries at Old Castle, County Meath, Ireland, in connection with the death of Peter Doggett, who was cut to pieces in a dough mixing machine in New York last August. An important arrest is expected in a few days.

A Fire and Earthquake.

PORT AU PRINCE, Dec. 30.—A fire here destroyed 800 houses, including a number of warehouses, a hotel, the Church of St. Joseph and its parsonage. About 3,000 people were rendered homeless. Later there was an earthquake, the disturbances running from north to south, lasting half a minute and causing slight cracks in the earth.

Presbyterian Minister Honored.

WILMINGTON, Del., Dec. 30.—Rev. William F. Lewis, M. A., pastor of Rodney Street Presbyterian church, has received word from Wales that he had been nominated by the synod of the Presbyterian church of Wales to the chair of Hebrew and the Old Testament at the Presbyterian Theological college at Fala, North Wales.

Scaling Bill a Law.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30.—Secretary Foster had a brief conference with President McKinley, after which the president approved the bill "prohibiting the killing of fur seals in the waters of the North Pacific ocean," passed the day congress adjourned for the holidays.

Mrs. Woolsey G. Sterling Dead.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Dec. 30.—Mrs. Woolsey G. Sterling is dead, aged 82 years. She was a prominent abolitionist, and her home at Bridgeport was a station on the "underground railroad" for aiding slaves to escape.

Stopped Boxing In Chicago.

CHICAGO, Dec. 30.—Major Harrison has issued an order prohibiting public boxing exhibitions in the city.

The Weather.

Rain, probably followed by fair in the interior; southwesterly winds, becoming northwest.

THE ORDER HAS COME

For an Election of Officers In Company E.

WILL BE HELD NEXT MONDAY

The Lieutenants Are to Be Chosen—New Blood in the Company—The Gaps Will Be Closed Up at Once and Hard Work Will Begin.

The long expected order for an election in Company E has at last arrived, and Captain Hill has ordered the command to assemble in the armory next Monday evening for that purpose.

The company will elect two lieutenants who will fill the positions made vacant by the resignation of Lieutenants Finley and Johnson. The officers when chosen will take up the duties of the position immediately.

The company will be recruited to its full strength at once, and regular drill will be commenced. There is no discussion as yet as to where the regiment will encamp next year, but it is the purpose to have it in splendid condition when the time arrives.

GONE TO COLUMBUS.

Representative Ashford Is in the Battle.

Hon. P. M. Ashford, representative from this county, has gone to Columbus, and will remain there until after the legislature gets down to business. He will return to Salineville to look after some private business in two weeks.

U. P. church members, age limit expires Dec. 31. See ad.

On the River.

The river is rising, and today the marks at the wharf registered 6.6 feet. Business about the local wharf is quiet at present, but this is caused by the potteries not working. The Queen City passed down last night with a fair trip, and the Ben Hur passed up and is due down tonight.

Word from Zanesville says the Lorraine is laid up there. The ice in the Muskingum was so heavy that skaters crossed ahead of the boat at places where it forced its way through Tuesday.

Passed up—Enterprise and Robert Jenkins.

Fitz-Corbett tonight, Grand.

Excursion Rates.

Following the annual custom, ticket agents of the Pennsylvania lines will sell excursion tickets Dec. 24, 25 and 31, 1897, and Jan. 1, 1898, for the Christmas and New Year holidays. Tickets will not be sold to adults for less than 25 cents, nor to children for less than 15 cents. Return limit of excursion tickets will include Jan. 4, 1898. For rates, time of trains and further information please apply to nearest ticket agent of the Pennsylvania lines.

Get Out of the Cold.

You may quickly pass from a cold to a warm climate via Pennsylvania lines from East Liverpool, the direct tourist route through Chicago and St. Louis to California, and through Cincinnati or Louisville to Florida and the south. For details apply to J. K. Dillon, district passenger agent, 360 Fifth avenue, Pittsburg.

Losing No Time.

A force of mechanics are working every day and for several hours each night putting in position the handsome new furniture at the First National bank.

Excellent progress has been made, but it will be several days before the work is finished.

Veriscope tonight.

A Good Town.

A life insurance man traveling, for a Cleveland company and now in the city, said to a reporter today that although he had been in the city but a few days he had not been in a town during the last year where he found the people working as they are at present in East Liverpool.

Ready to Start.

The Sebring company have ordered a large double pump to be used in the slip house of the Second street pottery.

Almost all the machinery for the East End plant has been completed. The small lot yet to be made will be sent there within the next two weeks.

Card of Thanks.

We desire to extend sincere thanks to the ministers and friends who so kindly aided us in our great bereavement, the death of Charles Heckathorn.

Mrs. RUTH HECKATHORN AND FAMILY.

The Poetry of Nature.

"The poetry of earth is never dead," wrote Keats, and though the statement sounds at first thought a dangerously sweeping one there is no doubt that if he had been called upon to argue the point he would have successfully maintained his thesis. Regarded subjectively, the poetry of earth, or, in other words, the quality which makes for poetry in external nature, is that power in nature which moves us by suggestion, which excites in us emotion, imagination or poignant association, which plays upon the tense strings of our sympathies with the fingers of memory or desire. This power may reside not less in a bleak pasture lot than in a paradise close of bloom and verdure, not less in a roadside thistle patch than in a peak that soars into the sunset. It works through sheer beauty or sheer sublimity, but it may work with equal effect through austerity or reticence or limitation or change. It may use the most common scenes, the most familiar facts and forms, as the vehicle of its most penetrating and most illuminating message. It is apt to make the drop of dew on a grass blade as significant as the starred sphere of the sky.

Merely descriptive poetry is not very far removed from the work of the reporter and the photographer. Lacking the selective quality of creative art, it is in reality little more than a representation of some of the raw materials of poetry. It leaves the reader unmoved, because little emotion has gone to its making.—Charles G. D. Roberts in Forum.

A Baked Bonnet.

During a recent rainstorm a society woman was caught in a sudden downpour and was compelled to run home in very undignified haste. Her dignity, however, wasn't damaged as much as her bonnet. The latter had been a dream of beauty when she started out. It was a perfect nightmare when she reached home again. She thought that a little heating would bring it about all right. The kitchen fire had gone out, but she put the bonnet in the oven and prepared to build the fire. Just as she had got all the materials together the doorbell rang. It was a caller. The visitor was a great gossip, and she had a brand new bit of scandal to tell. The two women became very much absorbed in their chat. During the course of it the servant girl, who had been out for the afternoon, returned and passed back into the kitchen. About an hour later the two gossips in the parlor began to notice a queer odor coming from the kitchen. The truth of the situation suddenly flashed upon the hostess, who immediately rushed out into the kitchen. There she found to her horror that the girl had built the kitchen fire and her lovely bonnet lay in the oven roasted to a crisp.—Philadelphia Record.

A London Cook.

There is a celebrated cook in London about whom it is said that he makes an income of over £2,000 a year. He is attached to no house.

This is how he earns his living: In his own brougham he sets out toward evening for the house of some rich man who is going to give a dinner at which every dish must be above criticism. Here he alights, and, making for the kitchen, goes through the process of tasting all the soups, sauces and made dishes, advising, when his palate suggests, a little more salt here, a pinch of herbs there, a dash of sugar in this entree, a suspicion of onion in that salmis, etc.

This done, he pockets his fee of 5 guineas and drives on to the next dinner giving patron who has bidden him to his feast in this strange fashion. His nightly list comprises many houses all through the London season.—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Masarwa Bushman.

Here is a solitary figure, that of a Masarwa bushman, engaged in digging up bulbs as a food supply. These bulbs, small, round and smooth and of a sweet, nutty flavor, are exactly the same as those for which the guinea fowls are searching so eagerly. They may be called the bushman's bread, and when game is scarce or hunting luck is out they serve as a mainstay against utter starvation.

The bushman collects his bulbs in the shell of a tortoise and presently will return to the protecting bush beneath which he and his family slept last night. After that he will perhaps visit a snare he set yesterday to entrap a duiker, one of the small antelopes of South Africa, or, failing the capture of the little buck, he may try to stalk a paauw with his bow and poisoned arrow or follow the troop of guinea fowls on the off chance of securing a head.—London Spectator.

The Origin of Puppet Shows.

The puppet show is such an ancient institution and has been popular in so many countries that its origin is quite obscured by the mists of antiquity. Antiquaries with ethnological spectacles have peered into this pristine fog and discerned a connection between the puppet show and religious observances. They have established the fact that dolls and marionettes are closely related and even advanced the theory that the shadow puppets used in many lands denote a time when all the people saw of religious ceremonies was the shadow of the officiating priests cast upon the walls of the sacred tent.—Francis J. Ziegler in Harper's Magazine.

WE HAVE DOUBTLESS DESERVED

the liberal patronage bestowed upon us during the past year, but we are none the less grateful to the masses who have contributed to our commercial prosperity. There is but one way we can reciprocate, and that is by continuing the policy we have mapped out, of deserving that which we seek, the confidence of the community, and the respect of our rivals. We are not faultless, we admit; but there has never been an error but what we have tried to rectify it; there has never been a contention but what we have given the benefit of the doubt to the customer. We are the pioneers of the one price system and perhaps the only firm adhering to it strictly. We advocate and practice honesty in advertising. We make it part of our business never to be undersold. We are in business for the profit there is in it, and we have not been disappointed in this year's expectations. But there is an annual grand final—stock taking time—when wise merchants wish to count their gains in dollars and cents, not merchandise. Our annual inventory sale starts tomorrow and continues for the month of January. The balance of winter stocks are to be converted into cash; at cost if we can, at a loss if we must. And bear this in mind, you who are attracted by staring announcements, that although we will no more tell you that our goods will be sold at 25 cents on the dollar, or at 50 cents on the dollar, than would the illustrious Father of Our Country, were he among us; yet we firmly promise you that our price cutting shall be as deep, or deeper, than that of our respected contemporaries, even though our newspaper announcements might not be so sensational or alluring. We have relied much upon the wisdom of our community in the past, and find no reason to change our course in this respect. Overcoats, Ulsters and other fad Winter Clothing, are all ready for you in these new profitless prices.

We wish you all a happy and prosperous new year.

VERY RARE DOLLARS

TWO MORE OF 1804 SAID TO HAVE BEEN FOUND.

Mr. Seymour and Mr. Delos Claim They Have One Each—Where the Original 20,000 Dollars of 1804 Went to Is a Mystery—Last One Found in New York.

Numismatists in New York are greatly interested in the report that another of the 1804 silver dollars has turned up, this time in the possession of a bartender in Chateau, Mo. Once upon a time there were 20,000 of these dollars. Every one of them, according to some authorities, has disappeared, and the two known to be in collections are said to be dollars struck from the 1804 die at a later date. At present the 1804 dollar is priced at $2,000, although sums ranging as high as $8,000 have been offered for it.

Of the two dollars bearing the 1804 date now known to be in existence one is owned by L. E. Altwein of St. Joseph, Mo., who, after long negotiations, bought it from an Illinois man for $1,000. That was several years ago. The other was in the collection of Parmlee, the noted Boston numismatist and collector. He paid $750 for it some time in the seventies, but could undoubtedly have sold it for more than three times that amount. At one time the government was in negotiation for it, but the negotiations fell through. When the Parmlee collection was sold at auction in New York several years ago, the famous dollar was not a part of it.

From time to time reports of other 1804 dollars have been circulated, but they invariably turned out to be either with out foundation or to refer to bad counterfeits.

What has become of the 20,000 1804

silver dollars? That is the question over which numismatists have pondered and explored. The theory which seems to be best borne out by facts is as follows, based on the undoubted fact that there were 20,000 of these coins struck off in the year 1804, which is sufficiently attested by records. At that time we were engaged in a war with Tripoli, and our marines cruising about the northern coast of Africa had to be paid. A certain member of congress made himself unpopular by suggesting that necessity in a very forceful manner, for funds were scarce at that time. The objection at once met him:

"There is no money to pay them with."

"In the mint are 20,000 silver dollars not yet issued," he replied. "Why not send those?"

Accordingly the silver dollars were shipped to gladden the hearts of the marines. It happened that about that time tribesmen from the interior had come foraging to the coast, where they fell in with our marines. These tribesmen, it is said, took a violent fancy to the silver dollars. No other money would they have, but for these coins they would barter their most precious possessions. The result was that the marines sailed away possessed of much treasure of the orient, while the natives, wearing clanking chains of 1804 dollars, danced joyously upon the sands. All these coins their new possessors punched to string as necklaces or waistbands and took back with them into the interior, where they were lost, buried with their owners, or scattered. This is the theory to which most of the collectors adhere, and it is hypothetically substantiated by reports that several years ago two old American dollars with holes punched where the date had been turned up in an Algerian village.

Another theory is more romantic. In 1795 there was trouble between Algiers and this country, terminating in an agreement on the part of the United States to pay $800,000 for the freedom of our captured and enslaved seamen, and $23,000 for immunity to our ships thereafter. Not until 1804, when the war with Tripoli was in progress, was the $23,000, including the entire coinage of 1804, sent. The frigate Philadelphia, having the money on board, ran aground and was captured by the Tripolitans. The frigate was subsequently boarded and burned by the Americans, but the money was gone.

Neither of these theories accounts for a peculiar feature of the coinage of that time. Several silver dollars have been discovered which plainly show 1805 stamped over 1804. In 1805 no silver dollars were issued from the mints, nevertheless 321 are now known to be in collections. How they got out of the treasury they had been struck off is not known. As for the existing two 1804 dollars, which are the envy of every collector in the country, it has been pretty well established that they were coined in 1828 through the connivance of men in the mint with two collectors, the old die being found and the coins being struck off, although this constitutes, and did at that time constitute, a penal offense. This in no wise decreased the value of the two coins; if anything, it enhanced it.

As to the genuineness of the dollar in the possession of Mr. Billy Seymour of Montana, the coin collectors can only theorize at this distance. Ten years ago there were 20,000 coin collectors in America, which number has been reduced perhaps 50 per cent by hard times and the increasing rarity of old coins. If that 1804 dollar had been going the rounds long, it is hardly possible that it would have escaped the notice, either at first hand or through mention of some vigilant numismatist, particularly as the appearance of any coin of that age is unusual and likely to be remarked.

Still another 1804 dollar has turned up in a bookseller's shop on Canal street, in New York. Two months ago it was bought by Felix Delos, a marble cutter living in New York, for $100. This one was in an excellent state of preservation, slightly darkened, as if from the action of sulphur, but as clear and clean cut as a coin of the present year.—New York Sun.

Race For a Copyright.

When President McKinley's mother was stricken he telegraphed: "Tell mother I'll be there." The man who wrote "After the Ball" and another "popular song" writer had a race the other day to copyright the expression. The "After the Ball" man was a little late, so he added the word "Just" at the beginning of the sentence, and each writer secured a copyright.—Richmond Times.

A NEW YEAR'S LAMENT.

Scores of budding bards who tell us in their tuneful, tearful rhyme We must lavish all our pity on the poor at New Year's time Should restrain their rueful sighing, cease the tearing of their hair, For the man who needs our pity is the hapless millionaire.

All the year he has expenses quite peculiar to his kind.

If he owns a country mansion, he is sure as fate to find

There is little left at New Year's if he does not have a care.

For the country tax assessor always plucks a millionaire.

When the Christmastime is with him, there is little joy in life.

He must spend a modest fortune on his daughters and his wife.

He has forty poor relations who must have their presents rare, Or they'll curse the parsimony of the luckless millionaire.

He has scores of friends impoverished who must each receive a lift,

And his butler and his coachman both expect a New Year's gift.

Half a dozen other servants lie in wait to get a share Of the "Happy New Year" favors of the hunted millionaire.

There's the boy who leaves the paper—he must get his usual tip;

There's McGee, the faithful postman, and his "Happy New Year's" trip;

There's the elevator youngster, and the "cabby" on the square—

Not a one must be forgotten by the bothered millionaire.

Every clerk around the office he can see is full of hope

That he'll find an extra greenback in the pay day envelope.

At his club each smiling lackey's primed to either bless or swear If remembered or forgotten by the worried millionaire.

All the "Happy, Happy New Year's," while the poor are having fun, He is paying out his money like a bank that has a "run."

Every hand that is extended seems to miss his hand with care And to grasp the leg elastic of the plundered millionaire.

All the "Happy, Happy New Year's" he is envying the poor. Being everybody's victim is not fun they may be sure.

Which is why I take exception to the bards and here declare That the man who needs our pity is the hapless millionaire.

A NEW YEAR'S GIFT.

THE STORY OF A CUBAN CONVICT BY F. A. OBER.

As managing editor of The Patriot, Havana soon became too hot to hold me. Suspected of corresponding with the insurgents, I was hauled before the tyrant Weyler at the palace. This was one morning early. At noon I was aboard a train for Batabano and at night on a steamer for the isle of Pines, the penal settlement for political convicts.

It might have been worse, of course, for the tribunal might have sent me to Ceuta, on the African coast, where chains and a cell would surely have been my portion. Instead, however, I was confined within the borders of a beautiful island, which a bountiful Providence had provided with every gift of nature, and deprived only of my friends and my habitual environment.

Soon after my deportation, having been landed at one of the two ports here and finding the wretched town life not to my taste, I wandered away to the eminence known as the Crystal hill, from the summit of which I could look out over the desolate sea and the forest intervening between it and the plantations. These and the town lay on the plain eastward of the hill. Some distance down its western slope I found the yawning mouth of a cave open in the direction of the sea, its farther end somewhere within the bowels of the earth. It was large and dry, with immense natural pillars supporting a roof hung with stalactites, while a stream of clear water issued from its unexplored interior. In its outer chamber I hung a hammock, a fire of gum wood dispensed warmth and perfume when the nights were chill, and I thought I should be content here for a month at least, or until I could venture back to Havana.

I had money and firearms, and provisions were daily supplied me by a faithful islander whom I had befriended in former times. In the surrounding forest were many plants and animals which could afford me sustenance if my supply from town were to be cut off, and I lacked only companionship to make me perfectly contented.

If only Olivia were here—Olivia, my fiancee! If I had but married her before this unfortunate affair! But, no; this was no place for tenderly nurtured woman like the daughter of the alcalde of San Cristobal.

I sat in the cave's mouth one day at noon. The heat of the plains was most oppressive, but a breeze from the ocean stirred the leaves of the pines. But for their sighing there was no sound to disturb the deathlike calm till an unfamiliar clashing of branches caused me to start and reach out for my rifle, leaning against a rock nearby.

Distracted as I was I expected nothing less than a visit from the Spanish volunteers who guarded the island, but, looking up, I saw before me the figure of a girl. She was comely and her face shone with intelligence, yet I knew that she belonged to the serving class. It was indeed Carmela, the devoted maid of my fiancee! She smiled and held out a folded paper. At first my bewildered senses could hardly accept this token of her existence. My vision was blurred, the scene before me swam in a mist. But, murmuring vaguely my thanks, I took the letter, opened it and read:

"Will you venture?" I asked.

"Certainly," she answered, smiling into my eyes. "But first let us be indeed sure it is approaching."

I turned to the maid. "Where—where is she?" I demanded, leaping from my hammock. The girl shrugged her shoulders and pointed to the pines on the brow of the hill, but vouchsafed me no other reply.

I scrambled up the rocks, and there, steadying herself against the trunk of a pine, was my sweetheart! She looked at me timidly, in her eyes a mute inquiry, as if doubtful of the reception I would offer. Not long, however, was she hesitating.

I scolded up the rocks, and there, steadying herself against the trunk of a pine, was my sweetheart! She looked at me timidly, in her eyes a mute inquiry, as if doubtful of the reception I would offer. Not long, however, was she hesitating.

Half the distance had been traversed, and, though darkness now overspread the ocean, we could still make out the ship's position by her lights. The sea became rougher and more turbulent, and suddenly I sensed a new danger. While I was watching the foam crested billows sweeping toward us, in order to avoid them, I saw in their dark hollows rapidly moving streaks of phosphorescence.

We were beset by sharks! Their flaming fins were cleaving the water all about us. The black waves were alive with them!

But the bark was looming steadily before us. In another half hour we should be within hail, even if she did not sooner see us and lower a boat. Perhaps I was made too confident by this assurance: but, without warning, a fierce wave assailed us and the raft was overturned! The same wave carried my sweetheart away into the darkness, but I swam swiftly to her side and thrust out an arm to draw her to my shoulder for support.

But that instant, as her eyes looked lovingly into mine, a cry burst from her lips and she sank beneath the waves. I clutched at her dress and strove to raise her, but my strength was unequal as against that of the monster that had seized her.

Down, down below the turmoil of waves and roaring of billows we sank together. I wrenched my knife from its sheath, and, in my fury, plunged it into the man-eater's body, gray and ghastly alongside of me. The grim jaws relaxed their hold, and, dragging the apparently lifeless form to the surface, I bore it to the raft and cast myself down beside her. There, while the waves swept over us, while the fins of the sharks hissed and gleamed in the foaming waters, I call to her, bent above her, pressed my lips to hers.

Then, overcome by fatigue and despair, I swooned by her side.

It is estimated that during the present century no less than 30,000,000 of civilized men have perished in war.

THE SKELETON OF 1897.

Half sinking, half swimming, he slips from the land. The bell rope is clinched in his tremulous hand. His last sun has set in the billowy tomb. The clock of the months marks the moment of doom.

Oh, visitant ghostly, we bid thee farewell! But just for one moment withhold thy last knell. To tell us the fate of our lost summer flowers, Our love songs, our bird notes, our blossoming hours.

Full many sweet hopes we've intrusted to time. Their realization—oh, when shall we see? And will you not tell us in what diadems The fragments are set of our lost, shattered gems?

The path we've walked with thee has been as uneven. But did it not slant just a little toward heaven? The sheaves we have garnered to scatter abroad Doest know that they're safe in the storehouse of God?

Still mute! Oh, departing year, we care not whether Thy heart be as fickle and false as thy weather! Go, sink with thy storms and thy floods past recall. And let the eternal waves cover them all.

The past and the future clasp hands over them As o'er thy head surges the turbulent sea. Thine own nerveless fingers must ring out the knell. The clock strikes, the bell tolls. Farewell, oh, farewell!

—Mary A. Benson.

THE WORD JANUARY.

Janus, the God of Gates and Avenues, Historical Superstition.

"Tis he! The two fac'd Janus comes in view!"

According to mythology, Janus was the god of gates and avenues and in that character held a key in his right hand and a rod in his left to symbolize his opening and ruling the year; sometimes he bore the number 300 in one hand and 55 in the other, the number of its days in the ancient lunar years. At other times he was represented by four heads and placed in a temple of four equal sides with a door and three windows in each side, as emblems of the four seasons and the 12 months over which he presided.

Verstegan states that the Saxons called this period wolf monat, or wolf month, because the wolves of ancient forests, impelled by hunger during the season, were wont to prowl about human habitations and attack man himself, the inferior animals on whom they usually preyed having retired or perished from the inclemency of the weather. It is an established fact that expanded civilization has moderated the rigors of winter.

The Saxons, in a more poetical sense, called it Guili Afters or Afters Yula, signifying "after Christmas." In illuminated calendars prefixed to missals or service books January was frequently depicted as a man with fagots or a woodman's ax, shivering and blowing breath upon his fingers. Spenser, in his "Faerie Queene," thus describes the popular illustration:

Then came old January, wrapped well In many weeds to keep the cold away, Yet did he quake and quiver, like to quell, And blow his nayles to warm them, if he may, For they were numb'd with holding all the day

An hatchet keen with which he fell'd wood And from the trees did lop the needless sprig.

The gentle, loving Charles Lamb in quiet differentiation thus begins one excellent paper: "Every man hath two birthdays; two days, at least, in every year which set him upon revolving the lapses of time as it affects his mortal duration. The one is that in which, in an especial manner, he termeth his. In the gradual desuetude of old observances, this of solemnizing our proper birthday hath nearly passed away or is left to children who reflect nothing at all about the matter nor understand anything beyond the cake and orange."

The birth of a new year is of an interest too wide to be permitted by king or cobbler. No one ever regarded the 1st of January with indifference. It is that from which all date their time and count upon what is left. It is the nativity of our companion Adam." ALBERT P. SOUTHWICK.

AN EMERGENCY.

Being an Episode of Holiday Shopping In a Great City.

The old man had "billygoat" whiskers, and he wore a brown hickory shirt with white agate buttons, but his heart was in the right place.

It was in a city store—not one of the swell stores, but a place where they kept all sorts of toys and sold them cheap.

An old Irish woman in a shawl and hood had just come in and she stood fumbling with bare, trembling hands at the wrappings of the parcel which she carried. At last she undid the knots in the string and she took from the paper a little red wagon with one wheel off.

Stepping up to the dapper floorwalker she said timidly: "Tis a gift for Jamie, sir, all Oi can git 'im, an' it bees broke—the wheel bees clane off it. Ol don't want to be puttin' the blame on to no wan, but it must a' be'n done afore Oi tuk it, fur Oi held it so tinderlike that it cu'dn't 'a' broke."

"Can't be helped. We are not responsible for breakage after customers have received goods. Couldn't have been done here. Saleslady would have noticed it."

There was a disappointed look on the woman's face, and her lip quivered as she began to tear up the parcel.

The old man in the hickory shirt stepped forward. "Hyur, lemme see it. Um-m, nut's off'n th' wheel. Young man, you kin fetch me a nut to fit that thar ax."

"But we—this is not a repair shop."

"I say, you fetch me a nut. You kin take one off'n one o' them other carts, an' you be quick about it."

"But we don't"—Here one of the shop girls came up and whispered: "Better get it. That old man just bought $60 worth of goods." Then the dapper fellow went away and soon returned with the required bit of iron.

The old man coolly took his huge complicated jackknife and opened out a small monkey wrench, with which he fixed the wheel. Then he wrapped up the parcel bunglingly and handed it to the old woman.

She took it with trembling hands. "Ol'm oblige to ye, sir," said she, and hugging the bulky bundle to her breast she went out into the street and disappeared among the eager, rushing, jostling crowd of shoppers. —MARIE MOORE MARSH.

Some People Did Not Escape
the Last Grand Jury.

ONLY THOSE WHO WERE IN JAIL

Were Called to Account by Prosecutor
Speaker—The Others Will Have to
Answer Charges Against Them When the Next Jury Is Called.

C. A. Speaker will next Monday step down from the position he has occupied for six years, and will be succeeded by Jason H. Brookes, of this city, but before he goes the prosecutor makes the announcement that all the criminal business of the county was not disposed of by the last grand jury.

In some manner the impression has gained ground that the special grand jury had ignored a number of important cases, when the truth is that these cases were not considered at all, and the accused individuals will be called upon to answer to the next regular grand jury. They are at present out on bail.

The special was called for the purpose of considering the charges against those parties who were in jail and could not obtain bail. It was looked upon as a stroke of economy to have them disposed of as soon as possible, since it would relieve the county of the expense of keeping them until the next grand jury should begin business.

FACTS ABOUT 1898.

APPRECIATE MRS. SOUTHWORTH

The Trustees of the Home Made Her a Present.

The friends in the city will hear with pleasure that the board of trustees of the Fairmount home, of which Hon. David Boyce is a member, have presented Mrs. M. M. Southworth with a handsome wrap, a token of the high regard in which the lady is held by the governing body of that institution. Mrs. Southworth devotes a great part of her time to the scores of little ones under her care, and is among the most successful matrons filling a position of that kind in the country, a fact the trustees have not been slow in recognizing.

THE HOSPITAL PROJECT.

Will Be Taken Up at Once by the Committee.

Now that the holidays are almost over the committee having the hospital in charge will take up the matter where it was dropped.

Secretary Keiffer said this morning that they were all going to make good resolutions now, and it might be a meeting would be held next week.

EXCURSION RATES.

Following the annual custom, ticket agents of the Pennsylvania lines will sell excursion tickets Dec. 24, 25 and 31, 1897, and Jan. 1, 1898, for the Christmas and New Year holidays. Tickets will not be sold to adults for less than 25 cents, nor to children for less than 15 cents. Return limit of excursion tickets will include Jan. 4, 1898. For rates, time of trains and further information please apply to nearest ticket agent of the Pennsylvania lines.

GET OUT OF THE COLD.

You may quickly pass from a cold to a warm climate via Pennsylvania lines from East Liverpool, the direct tourist rate route through Chicago and St. Louis to California, and through Cincinnati or Louisville to Florida and the south. For details apply to J. K. Dillon, district passenger agent, 360 Fifth avenue, Pittsburgh.

The Citizen's National bank, with headquarters on Fourth street, at the old postoffice, is now ready for business.

BOUND OVER TO COURT

Harrison Rinehart Was Heard Yesterday.

ASSAULT AND BATTERY CHARGED

Another Chapter in the Trouble Between John Rinehart and His Son Was Passed Through at City Hall--Bail Was Fixed at $100.

Harrison Rinehart was heard in the court of Mayor Gilbert yesterday afternoon on a charge of assault and battery. The charge was made by his father, John Rinehart, and is the outcome of the row at the Second street stable where the son was struck in the face by a pitchfork and received two wounds which for a time promised to be serious.

Harrison Rinehart was represented by Solicitor Grosshans, and the witnesses were Price Mountford, Harvey Barnhart, David Brown, Will Ferguson and Edward Kelley. The story as given in the NEWS REVIEW was told, the accused showing that he had been assaulted and defended himself. Mayor Gilbert bound him to court in the sum of $100. Bail was given.

A PROSPEROUS COUNCIL

Elected Officers For the Year Last Night.

This Is Where We Smile.

Wellsville knows how to secure new industries, even if she has fairly to steal them from her neighbor, East Liverpool. Her wideawake citizens have carried off a four-kiln pottery from East Liverpool with a $15,000 bonus.—Youngstown Telegram

Should Be Removed.

The wagon owned by Joe Smith and left standing in Union street since Tuesday morning looked like an ancient iceberg this morning. The garbage in the wagon is frozen and the spectacle is something to behold. The street commissioner should remove the obstacle.

Moved to Steubenville.

Porter Anderson yesterday afternoon shipped his household effects to Steubenville. He will reside in Dock street. Mr. and Mrs. Anderson were but recently married. He has taken a responsible position with the Adams Express company.

Prospects Are Good.

C. A. Bowker, of Los Angeles, Cal., is spending a few days in the city, the guest of J. R. Warner.

Mr. Bowker is the western agent of the Union pottery, and says the outlook for business next year was never brighter.

The People Went West.

The wind up of the holiday business of the Cleveland and Pittsburg road opened this morning with a rush. Extra cars were attached to all the early trains, but most of the travel from this place went west.

It Was a Good Year.

Cashier Austin said this morning that the report of business done this year would show a great advance over that of last year. It will be some time before the reports are completed.

No Complaint Now.

Jethro street is in better condition than it has been for many weeks as the street force have covered the roadway with many loads of cinders.

THE NEWS REVIEW wishes all its readers a prosperous and happy new year.

If Europe isn't preparing for war there are a great many people on this side of the water who will miss their guess.

MR. BRYAN has returned from Mexico, and even that home of silver admiration is not bowed down in sorrow. Perhaps Mexico has had enough of Bryan.

THE people of New York will probably wink at least one eye when they hear the Tammany leaders say the city is to have an honest administration. They have heard that story before.

THERE will be no issue of the News Review tomorrow. The holiday will be observed in all departments of the office; but if you read the News Review next Monday evening you will know all the news.

YOUNGSTOWN seems to be very well satisfied with its new ordinance compelling tramps to work. Doubtless there are other towns where the troublesome problem could be solved in the same manner.

THE cry should not all be against the Dingley law because a few thousand men employed in the cotton factories of Massachusetts are threatening to strike against a reduction. Let some note be taken of the vast amount of good the measure has done.

PROSPECTS.

East Liverpool will begin the new year in better spirits and with better prospects than has ever before been its lot. Its manufacturers have every reason to believe their invested capital will bring them splendid returns, while the operatives know they will be paid at a rate they have always considered just. Add to these is the fact that this place is a trolley to all intents and purposes. In crockery business of the country, consequence the business among professional men of the city anticipates is not of unexampled prosperity. As clear now a cloud in the sky. Long. With and as bright as the day made and the splendid progress so flattering, the promise for the day have in store the days to come, city those things for this busy town fame throughout which will spread to its importance. all the land and always had the ability. East Liverpool been possessed of the city, has alived to make it successful. enterprise opportunity. Now that It only given it by the Republican too has will make good use of the gift. party is certainly a good word, and when carried into effect in business life, is a power for good. But there are some business men of this city who do not, judging by their actions, understand the meaning of the word. They cry out vehemently for protection to home industry, and pat the newspaper man on the shoulder when he indites and publishes articles along this line of thought, articles which are calculated to do these self-same merchants good and put filthy lucre in their pockets and on the right side of their bank account; and then these self-same merchants cut other business men down to starvation prices when bidding for work to be done for these inconsistent self-protectionists, and wind up by sending said work to some foreign house, where starvation wages are paid to workmen and workwomen. The union workmen of East Liverpool should form the acquaintance of such inconsistent merchants, and hit them in the most vital spot—their pockets. Truly, consistency is a jewel."

BIG MILL PROJECT NOW

Another Matter Before the Board.

PEOPLE HAVE BEEN LIBERAL

But Those Who Know the Particulars Will Not Talk Although They Are Thankful. Other Projects Are Now in Sight—All the News of Wellsville.

The town is still talking pottery, but some other things have come in sight, and the opinion is by no means general that the plant is the only thing Wellsville is to have.

"The board of trade has four or five good propositions," said one of the officials of that body, "but we will not decide which one to take until we have the money in hand. One proposition is for a mill, and it will be a good one if we get it. I cannot now say whether we will be able to land the prize. The people have been very kind and liberal, and the board feels gratified at the progress made. I cannot now give any thing definite for publication."

A meeting of the soliciting committee was held last night, but as one member had forgotten to bring along his paper the exact amount collected could not be determined. It is said to be almost what the board desires.

In Justice Courts.

I. B. Clark has entered suit against the Wellsville Fair association to obtain $150 for services as secretary of the association. The case will be tried next Monday before Justice Riley.

Joseph E. Baughman has sued the Cleveland and Pittsburg railroad for $1,995 for malicious arrest. The case is in the hands of W. D. Lones.

Officer Lancaster arrested two train jumpers, Marshall Stevenson and T. H. Lewey, last evening. The men gave their residence as Pittsburg. They were given a hearing this afternoon, and fined $1 and costs each.

CALLED IN THE POLICE

To Investigate a Case of Faith Cure.

NOT A VERY SERIOUS MATTER

It Caused Much Comment Among People Who Heard the Particulars, But Developed Into Nothing of a Sensational Nature.

A number of people in the city were talking this morning of a matter which gave promise of some sensational developments, but they were all disappointed.

It seems that a man, who is well known, became ill some time ago, and his friends among the faith curists decided to see what they could do for him.

A number of prayer services were held at his home, and he did not recover. At length the matter was reported to the police and today the matter was investigated, but without anything being brought out that would prompt any movement on the part of the law. Some startling stories regarding the possible outcome of the matter were in circulation this morning.

PERSONAL MENTION.

—Misses Allie and Aggie Kinsey are visiting friends in Monaca, Pa.

—Mrs. Dr. Biddell, of New Brighton, is the guest of Mrs. J. S. Wilson.

EVANGELISTIC.

This Gentleman Possesses a Tongue Tipped With Eloquence.

He is now in East Liverpool and claims the acquaintance of a large circle of residents. He is very eloquent in argument and conversation, and has been assured that his true life work is in the evangelistic line. He has been taken at times as a minister, and at other times recognized as a priest, on account of his benevolent and reverential bearing, and the winsomeness of his smiling physiognomy. There is now a possibility that he will enter either the evangelistic or lecture field. We dare not give his name in full, for fear of offending him, as his modesty does not court newspaper notoriety; but the citizens of East Liverpool may ere long point with pride to him as a representative of our pottery center.

THE FIRST DAY

Will Be Observed Very Generally in Town.

New Year will be generally observed in the city.

The banks will be closed, and holiday hours will be observed at the postoffice, and the freight depot will be closed.

The Lutheran church will close the old year tonight with services beginning at 7:30 o'clock.

A watch meeting will be held at the Salvation Army tonight. Dick Albright, of Palestine, will have charge.

Watch meetings will be held at the First M. E. church and the African M. E. church.

AN OLD RESIDENT

Died Yesterday Afternoon Near Calcutta.

Thomas W. Huston, one of the oldest residents of St. Clair township, died at his home near Calcutta yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock. He was aged 84 years. George Huston and Mrs. Fawcett Anderson, of this city, are members of the family, and Columbus and Homer Huston, his other sons, reside in St. Clair township.

The funeral will take place Saturday morning at 11 o'clock, Rev. A. D. McCollough officiating. Interment will be at Long's Run cemetery.

NO MAN CAN NOW TELL

Very Much About the Senatorial Situation.

REPUBLICAN CAUCUS TOMORROW

It Will Show the Strength of the Contending Factions, but Kurtz Will Not Give Away All His Hand at Present. Blaqué Wilson's Letter.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]
COLUMBUS, Dec. 31.—The state capital has been the scene of much political activity during the past week, preliminary to the meeting of the seventy-third general assembly. Since last Monday every train has brought its quota of members of the legislature, candidates for place and politicians. Owing to the close political complexion of this legislature, great interest is attached to the session, and there is promise of lively times about the old state house this winter. By Thursday nearly all of the members had arrived, and the lobbies of the Neil house have been crowded. The first formalities of the session will occur Saturday evening in the hall of the house, where will be held the Republican caucus. This caucus will consider first the matter of United States senator, and then the organization of the two branches of the assembly.

Owing to the fact that Mr. Charles Kurtz and some of his friends are making an effort to defeat Senator Hanna for re-election, the senatorship has overshadowed all other questions in the preliminary maneuvering. Mr. Kurtz and his friends claim that they have enough votes to defeat the senator, and there are indications that they have made overtures to the Democrats for a combine for mutual benefit. The Kurtz people and the Democrats also seem to be working together for the control of the organization of both branches of the legislature. Their program is to cause a deadlock and tire out the Hanna organization, which is now in the ascendency.

On the other hand Col. C. W. F. Dick, who is here leading the forces of Mr. Hanna, claims the senator has enough votes pledged to elect, and he asserts confidently that the opposition will be beaten before the day of election. The fact is the whole situation seems to be involved in much mystery, and both sides will know more about it after the caucus. If any Republican members absent themselves from the caucus it will be taken as a sign of disaffection, yet it is not likely that Mr. Kurtz will make a showing of his whole hand by keeping all of his friends away.

The formal opening of the legislature will take place Monday morning, when both branches will be called to order at 10 o'clock. In the house it is expected that the Hon. Alexander Boxwell, of Warren county, will be elected speaker, and the indications are that Hon. John L. Means, of Jefferson, will be speaker pro tem. John R. Malloy will be elected chief clerk of the house, but for the other positions there are more than a score of candidates and it is impossible to make predictions until after the caucus.

The senate promises some excitement in the organization, as it is a tie politically, and one of the Republicans, Senator Voight, of Cincinnati, was elected on the Democratic fusion ticket. Both sides are claiming that they will organize the senate, and the matter will probably be decided by a compromise of some sort.

The balloting for United States senator does not take place until Tuesday, Jan. 11, on which date the two houses take separate ballots. On Wednesday at noon both houses meet in joint session and take a joint ballot. If there is no election the process will be repeated from day to day until a decision is reached or the legislature adjourns.

Governor Bushnell's second inauguration occurs on Monday, Jan. 10, and preparations are making for elaborate and imposing ceremonies. There will be a great parade of military and civil organizations and political clubs, and the committee now have information which leads them to believe that there will be about 6,000 men in line. The parade will be reviewed by the governor, the inaugural ceremony will be held in the state house, and a reception will be held in the senate chamber in the evening.

A NICE LITTLE PLAN

The English and Germans Have For the Year.

THEY WANT TO BEAT AMERICA

They Would Compel a Reduction of Wages and a Strike on This Side of the Water, and Then Step In and Capture the Market—The New York View.

Some time ago the story was told in this paper that the English and German manufacturers of crockery would compel a reduction of wages in America, bring on a strike and then take hold of the market. The tale has reached New York, and a trade paper's correspondent puts it in this way:

"The English and German earthenware manufacturers have arrived at a common understanding in regard to their plan of campaign during the coming year. Your correspondent learns, on the authority of a well known crockery importer here, that, in order to attract American trade and defeat the purposes of the Dingley tariff law in respect to earthenware importations, there will be a reduction of prices along the whole line in the European potteries. Wages will have to be cut down and other running expenses diminished, but at all sacrifices, the output of English, French, and German factories must be placed on the American market under such favorable conditions that Trenton and East Liverpool will be compelled to follow suit and reduce wages or else abandon the field altogether. It is an astute and plausible plan and may succeed unless American manufacturers put together and take steps to defeat the scheme.

"Apart from the matter of wages, everything looks bright and encouraging for the American potter. Home made crockery has greatly improved, not only in quality but in popular favor. Ordinary earthenware for the people as large is far superior to similar grades of goods made in foreign countries and, so far, there is little or no difference in prices between the native and imported articles. The only possible way for our friends on the other side to beat us is to do exactly what they propose to do in the reduction of wages. They argue that such a course will compel a similar reduction in the United States and that, if wages are lowered here, there will be a big strike which must result in the closing of the potteries, thus leaving the American crockery market in the absolute control of the importers and their principals in Europe. Whatever may be said, one way or the other, on this important subject, it is evident that it is timely and expedient for American manufacturers to get together and devise such methods and purposes as their common interests demand."

DIED SUDDENLY.

Heart Disease Caused the Demise of Thomas H. Fowler.

Thomas Hanson Fowler died suddenly at his home in Grant district yesterday, aged 73 years. Heart disease was the cause.

Deceased had been a resident of Hancock county all his life, and was very well known in this city. He was a brother of W. B. Fowler, of this city, and Mrs. Samuel Mick, of Glasgow. Smith Fowler, J. Q. A. Fowler and Patterson Fowler are nephews and Mrs. Peter Allison is a niece. A number of other relatives reside here.

The funeral will take place from his late residence tomorrow. Interment will be in Flats cemetery.

WANTED TO DIE.

A Vanport Man Was Weary of This Life.

Wm. Lentz, a well known young man of Vanport, aged 33, who has been suffering with typhoid fever, last evening attempted to cut his throat with a razor.

Friends managed to wrest the weapon from him but not before he had succeeded in inflicting a dangerous wound. The physicians who were called are not yet able to state whether his injuries will be fatal.

LESS THAN COST.

Housekeepers can get old papers, suitable for placing under carpets or trimming shelves, at much less than cost of material by calling at the News Review office.

Is Very Ill.

Miss Heskie Hays, daughter of B. D. Hays, is very ill with typhoid fever, is East End. If her condition will allow it she will be removed to the home of her parents on Jethro road tomorrow.

KNOCKED OUT A LAW

Plumbers Can Rest Themselves In Peace.

THE BOARD NEVER MOVED

To Make Them Obey the Measure Passed by the Last Legislature, but There Was Always Danger That It Would Be Brought Out.

The plumbers of the city can rest themselves in peace for an Akron judge has decided unconstitutional the law which compels them to take out a license before they can work.

The law was passed for the purpose of keeping out of the business those persons who know next to nothing of plumbing. It compelled plumbers to take out a license, and only those possessing a knowledge of the trade could be thus favored. The Akron case was tried in common pleas court, the judge holding that it was unlawful to make a plumber working for himself take out a license when the representative of any plumbing company might do the same thing, leaving the concern the right to employ competent or incompetent plumbers as they saw fit.

The law was never enforced in this city. The board of health discussed it several times, but it went no farther. Unless the decision is reversed by higher courts nothing more will be heard of it.

A HANDSOME EMBLEM.

J. B. Wickery Was Honored by His Friends Among the Elks.

J. B. Wickery, commercial agent of the Northern Pacific road with offices in Pittsburg, was in the city yesterday the guest of Agent Adam Hill. He said he had booked a lot of business for next year, and the outlook was very promising.

Mr. Wickery is a member of the Allegheny lodge of Elks, and recently received the office of district deputy. When installed in office Mr. Wickery was presented with a handsome emblem of the order which contains 147 diamonds, one weighing two carats. Other jewels are set in the face, and it is a handsome piece of work.

Didn't Like the Town.

A stranger who has been doing business in the city for several days remarked to a friend in one of the hotels this morning:

"This town is all right in a business way, and I guess the people who live here like it, but it's for the reason that people get along with a thing when they have never known anything better."

Some people who heard the conversation wondered what particular part of the world managed to worry along with that gentleman's presence.

Delaney Didn't Appear Well.

Jack Delaney had a little argument with an individual in one of the uptown houses last night, and as a result was much the worse for looks shortly afterward.

He went to the fire station and washed off the effects of the battle. When the mud was scraped from him it was seen he had received a cut in the head and his cheeks were also badly scratched. He refused to tell the cause of the affray.

Attractions at the Grand.

Guy Brothers and their minstrels were well recommended to the Grand tomorrow night, and they should be seated by a crowded house. They are all known to theater goers in this city.

The "American Girl" is a play well calculated to entertain any audience. The company is strong and the piece intensely interesting. It will be presented at the Grand next Monday evening.

Guarded Against Fire.

While it was not generally known manager Norris last night while the incendiary was at the opera house took every precaution against fire.

Fireman Terrence was there with a hook and ready to act at a moment's notice.

His performance attracted a good crowd, and it was not hard to determine Corbett was the favorite of the audience.

Back to Work.

Joseph M. Cartwright will return next day to the University of Michigan. Frank Ikirt will resume his studies at Western Reserve Medical college day morning.

James M. McClure will leave Tuesday for Adrian college.

W. H. Kelley will return to the law school next week.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

Elmer A. Albright, of East Palestine, is visiting friends in this city.

John Rreak and his friends will dance at Brunt's tomorrow afternoon and evening.

Mrs. Will Reed, who has been ill at her home in West Sixth street, is somewhat improved.

The social to have been held at the First Presbyterian church this evening has been postponed.

Miss Hattie Thomas will entertain the Bachelor Girls at her home in Seventh street next Monday evening.

A number of sports of the city witnessed a lively cocking main on the Virginia side yesterday afternoon.

During last night a freight train killed a large dog at the freight depot. The owner of the dog could not be found.

Homer Swift, son of Rev. C. F. Swift, will this evening entertain a number of his friends at his home in West Fourth street.

The new local directory of the telephone company has been completed and will be presented to the subscribers early next week.

Stock taking at the East Palestine pottery has been completed, and the factory will commence operations in full next week.

A small amount of business was handled at the freight depot yesterday, but only a few cars were sent out from the outbound platform.

Henry Koch has severed his connection as traveling agent for a local concern, and after Jan. 1 will go on the road for a Pittsburg business house.

Miss Mary Thompson entertained a number of friends at the home of F. B. Chambers, Mulberry street, East End, last evening. A pleasant time was spent.

H. D. Wiley, who has been sick in Matamoras for some time, returned to the city last evening and this morning resumed his duties at the passenger station.

Among the sights seen this morning soon after there was light to see anything, was a plain drunk wandering along Fifth street. He was having a lot of fun with the snowflakes.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bell yesterday afternoon at their home in Jethro street gave a 3 o'clock dinner in honor of Bishop Lee. A large number of guests were present.

The train due at 10:03 this morning was delayed 30 minutes by heavy freight traffic on the Ft. Wayne road. The noon train was also 30 minutes late. The snow was the cause.

This morning in Sixth street a wagon ran over one of Bill Farmer's numerous canines but the dog was not seriously injured. Bill was very angry but comforted the dog as best he could, while he berated the driver of the wagon for his carelessness.

Among the most pleasant events of the season was the card party given yesterday afternoon from 2 to 6 o'clock by Mrs. W. E. Wells at her home in Thompson place. The guests numbered 24. Dainty refreshments were served at 5 o'clock.

J. F. Constans, eastern traveling freight agent of the Frisco line, was in the city this morning on business. He said that this was the last town he would visit this year, and the business he secured this morning was among the largest orders he had ever received.

Frank Hawley, of Cleveland, Miss Hortense Watts, of Sewickley, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Brown, of Buffalo, Miss Martha Medill, Miss Mary Graham and Miss Lena Dent, of Belpre, Miss Clara Henry and Miss Florence Chandler, of Steubenville, are guests at the Goodwin residence, Broadway, and will remain until the annual ball of

Even If His Salary Was Increased.

NIGHT NOT THE FIRST YEAR

But if the Mayor of the City Was to Decide That His Second Term Was His Last the Opportunity Would Be Open to Him.

The opponents of the salary ordinance, recently introduced into council, declare that no power in possession of that body can prevent the mayor from collecting the fees allowed him by the state, and to place him on a salary of $1,000 a year, would simply mean that his income had been increased by that amount, and the city would derive no special benefit.

The argument put forward is that the state law governs almost every violation of the statutes. If a man is seen drunk on the street and the police arrest him he is tried under the state law. The city gets the fine, but the fees allowed by the law go to the mayor, marshal and arresting officer. If he was tried under a city ordinance the municipality would derive no more benefit from the arrest than it does at present and the mayor would get the same amount. It is true the mayor has the privilege of trying the case under the city ordinance or the state law, but they argue, where is the official who would throw away his fee when the law allowed him to have it?

As the law is at present there is no means of getting around it. Anything the council may do in the way of making laws must be in accordance with the statutes, and to say in an ordinance that all fees were to go to the city treasury would but serve to make council ridiculous, for the measure would not be worth anything more than the paper on which it was written. The statutes say the mayor can have those fees, and to the mayor they would go.

One official who is opposed to the plan says that the mayor, elected with the understanding that he was to have a salary each year, would likely stand by the platform during his first term of office, but when elected for the second time he would in all probability avail himself of the loophole in the ordinance, and make as much out of his office as possible. In other words, he would not only draw his salary with regularity, but he would put the fees allowed him by law down in his pocket, and there is no power to prevent it, because he would be doing just what the law allowed him to do.

Council has been going over these facts within the past few days, and has found that it would be useless to pass the ordinance now before council. It is therefore probable that nothing more will be heard of the matter in its present form. It is probable, however, that something along that line will later be done.

The ordinance allowing council to select the chief of police is observed in the same light. Under the law the marshall has all the authority that would be given a chief of police, chosen by council. The only perceptible difference is that the matter would be taken out of the hands of the people and handed over to council. That is five men, a majority of council, would virtually do what had before been done by 3,000 men. Whether this would be better is the only question. Those who oppose the ordinance say that it would not, since it allows every opportunity for deals and arrangements, and they are not the most desirable things in municipal government. The other side of the question is that the marshal can do a great deal with the police force if he desires. He can keep them in line, and if they do not obey the rules they can be reported to police committee and from there their case should go to council. It is held, however, that a complete revision of the police regulations would be a very good thing.

A SPLENDID EVENT

Was the Banquet Given by the Carroll Club.

The Carroll club last evening celebrated their first anniversary in the spacious rooms in the Stevenson building, and the affair was one of the most pleasant of the season.

The rooms were very tastefully decorated in purple and white, the colors of the club, while potted plants in profusion added greatly to their beauty.

The early part of the evening an unusually fine musical program was rendered, and excellent addresses were made by Attorney John McGarry, Father Halligan, Martin Gill and a number of others.

The party then retired to the banquet room, where a table laden with all the delicacies had been prepared and 140 plates were laid.

ALL PARTIES PLEASED

Local Men and Pittsburg Capitalists Negotiating.

SOMETHING GOOD IS EXPECTED

The Project Set on Foot Last Week in the Liveliest Kind of a Plan, and From Present Indications Will Soon Reach a Focus.

A gentleman, who is in a position to know, stated last evening, that the negotiations now pending between Pittsburg capitalists and parties in this city would, from the outlook, be brought to a focus within a week or two.

The scheme on foot is for the building of a manufacturing plant. The gentlemen who were in the city one day last week, and of whom mention in this paper was made, have had several conferences with Liverpool men, but what has been the nature of these meetings, is being kept a secret.

It is known that one of the prime movers in the scheme was in Pittsburg Tuesday, and had a talk with the capitalists, and it is said he returned to the city much pleased with his visit. The architect who was in the city with the Pittsburg parties, and who has submitted several plans of buildings to the men, is working on other new ones, and by the middle of January the plant may be well under way.

The project is surrounded by the usual mystery, and the projectors will give out nothing for publication.

THE MYSTIC MIDGETS.

The Famous Midgets and Fairies Will Arrive Next Week.

On Friday and Saturday evenings of next week Professor Harper will again demonstrate to our people that the children of our city are as progressive and up-to-date as anywhere else. The Lilliputian carnival of nations which gave so much enjoyment and amusement last season will be reproduced. The already large cast has been increased, and every effort has been made to make each part as strong as possible. The special scenery which was omitted the last time will be used, and adds greatly to the production.

The children taking part in entertainments of this kind reap the benefit of much special training, not only in singing and speaking, but also in learning to be graceful, as the result will prove.

Professor Harper has offered a prize of two pairs of skates, the finest in the city, for the boy and girl selling the largest number of tickets, and a second prize of a pair of fine shoes to the one selling the next largest number.

U. P. church members, age limit expires Dec. 31. See ad.

READY TO START.

All the Potters Have Plenty of Orders.

Improvements at the potters are being rushed, and by next Monday morning it is believed that all of them will be in operation.

The fact that a great many salesmen have not yet left the city seems to have little to do with the situation, since all the concerns in the city have orders with which to start the new year.

Two Good Attractions.

Guy Brothers' minstrels are the attraction at the Grand, Saturday night, and an excellent performance is promised.

"The American Girl" will doubtless draw a large crowd to the Grand next Monday evening, since it is an attraction with a high place in the season's list.

Fitz-Corbett tonight, Grand.

An All Day Meeting.

New Year's day will be celebrated with unusual ceremony at the Foating Bethel. The services will continue throughout the day, including baptism, communion, and the washing of feet. A number of ministers of the faith will be present.

Travel Is Light.

Travel both east and west on the Cleveland and Pittsburg road was very light this morning. All the trains arrived on time except the one west, due at 8:20, which was 15 minutes late. The delay was caused by a flag at Rochester.

See Fitzsimmons tonight.

LESS THAN COST.

Housekeepers can get old papers, suitable for placing under carpets or trimming shelves, at much less than cost of material by calling at the News Review office.

Looking Forward.

A Cleveland clergyman who is not given to putting on a long face either in his pulpit or out of it says that before he came here from the south he was one day asked by a young man to unite him with the woman of his choice in the holy bonds of wedlock upon the evening of a certain day.

"I am very sorry," said the reverend gentleman, "but I shall be out of town upon that day."

The young man was crestfallen, said that he had set his heart upon having that particular minister perform the ceremony and asked if there was no possible way in which it could be arranged.

"I thought the matter over," said the clergyman in recounting the experience, "and finally agreed to return for the express purpose of complying with his wishes. He was greatly pleased, assured me that it was very kind of me and hinted that I would be well repaid for my trouble and consideration.

"So upon the day set for the ceremony I traveled nearly 200 miles, paid out $8.50 for my railroad ticket and other accommodations and gave the happy couple one of the best marriage services in my repertory.

"After the ceremony the groom came to me, blushing furiously, slipped a $5 bill into my hand and in all seriousness said:

"This is all I have to give you now, but I hope to be able to do better next time."

"I was $3.50 out of pocket on the transaction, and I guess I'll let him hunt up somebody else 'next time.' —Cleveland Leader.

The Early London Omnibus.

When the queen came to the throne, omnibuses were a new but already popular institution. They were longer, narrower and lower than the present ones and had no seats on the roof. The passengers were carefully shut in by a door at the end, as if to make quite sure of them, once they were captured, till they had paid their fares. On a little round perch behind stood the conductor or "cad," hanging on by a leather loop passed over his arm. Sixpence was the usual bus fare 60 years ago, whether you went from beginning to end of the journey or only a few hundred yards. As there was very little regulation of the street traffic of London in those days, if the bus was filled up at starting it went like a fire engine in order to get in an extra journey, but otherwise it crawled and pattered about till the requisite number was obtained.

Each omnibus was licensed only for a particular route. It paid the stage-coach duty of £5 when first started and shilling a year for keeping the license in force, besides a mileage duty, varying with the number of passengers it would hold, but coming to about threepence per mile on the average.—Gentleman's Magazine.

A Mean Dog.

He was a small boy—not such a very small boy—in an out of town school. He had written a composition. It was upon the subject of dogs. Now the teacher of the school was a man, and he was not popular. He was what the boys called "mean." They disliked him thoroughly, from the tips of his shining shoes to the ends of his pompadour combed hair. In the composition there was a story of a dog. It was the story of a very mean dog, and as the composer of the literary effort came to the last line he read it emphatically and with great distinctness of utterance, and the hearts of all the other small boys in the room, as they listened, quaked, half with delight and half with fear, knowing what was to follow, and gazing, fascinated, at the upright coiffure of the master, as the reader ended, "And that dog was so mean that his hair stood on end."—New York Times.

What Is Style?

The fact that we use the word "style" in speaking of architecture and sculpture, painting and music, dancing, play acting and cricket, that we can apply it to the careful achievements of the housebreaker and the poisoner, and to the spontaneous animal movements of the limbs of man or beast, is the noblest of unconscious tributes to the faculty of letters. Morals, philosophy and aesthetic, mood and conviction, creed and whim, habit, passion and demonstration—what art but the art of literature admits the entrance of all these and guards them from the suddenness of mortality? All style is gesture, the gesture of the mind and of the soul. Other gestures change and fit; this is the ultimate and enduring revelation of personality.—"Style," by Walter Raleigh.

How Browning Read Political Matter. I have read the newspapers only through Robert's eyes. He reads them in a room sacred from the foot of woman. And this is not always satisfactory, as whenever Robert falls into a state of disgust with any political party he throws the whole subject over. Every now and then he ignores France altogether, and I, who am more tolerant and more curious, find myself suspended over a hiatus. I ask about Thiers' speech. "Thiers is a rascal," he says. "I make a point of not reading a word of Thiers." M. Prudhon, then? "Prudhon is a madman. Who cares for Prudhon?" The president? "The president is an ass not worth thinking of." And so we treat of politics.—Letters of Elizabeth Barrett Browning.

Terrible Tragedy Over Board Bill.

CAMDEN, N. J., Dec. 30.—Eton Johnson, aged 22 years, attempted to murder Ernest Fellows and Mrs. Fellows and their 13-year-old son, Frank, by shooting them at their home, 228 Erie street. He dangerously wounded Fellows and inflicted a slight wound in the boy's thigh and a flesh wound on Mrs. Fellows. Johnson then blew out his brains. They had held his trunk for back board.

Van Wyck Opposed to Jollification.

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—Mayor-elect Van Wyck objects to the board of aldermen's plans for celebrating the birth of Greater New York on New Year's eve. He wants to go into office without any demonstration. Most of the contracts for the jollification have been made, however, and it will probably be carried out.

Important Arrest Expected.

LONDON, Dec. 30.—Inspector Corry of the Scotland Yard detective department is making inquiries at Old Castle, County Meath, Ireland, in connection with the death of Peter Doggett, who was cut to pieces in a dough mixing machine in New York last August. An important arrest is expected in a few days.

A Fire and Earthquake.

PORT AU PRINCE, Dec. 30.—A fire here destroyed 800 houses, including a number of warehouses, a hotel, the Church of St. Joseph and its parsonage. About 3,000 people were rendered homeless. Later there was an earthquake, the disturbances running from north to south, lasting half a minute and causing slight cracks in the earth.

Presbyterian Minister Honored.

WILMINGTON, Del., Dec. 30.—Rev. William F. Lewis, M. A., pastor of Rodney Street Presbyterian church, has received word from Wales that he had been nominated by the synod of the Presbyterian church of Wales to the chair of Hebrew and the Old Testament at the Presbyterian Theological College at Llana, North Wales.

Scaling Bill a Law.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30.—Secretary Foster had a brief conference with President McKinley, after which the president approved the bill "prohibiting the killing of fur seals in the waters of the North Pacific ocean," passed the day congress adjourned for the holidays.

Mrs. Woolsey G. Sterling Dead.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Dec. 30.—Mrs. Woolsey G. Sterling is dead, aged 83 years. She was a prominent abolitionist, and her home at Bridgeport was a station on the "underground railroad" for aiding slaves to escape.

Stoped Boxing in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Dec. 30.—Mayor Harrison has issued an order prohibiting public boxing exhibitions in the city.

The Weather.

Rain, probably followed by fair in the interior: southwesterly winds, becoming northwest.

THE ORDER HAS COME

For an Election of Officers In Company E.

WILL BE HELD NEXT MONDAY

Two Lieutenants Are to Be Chosen—New Blood In the Company—The Gaps Will Be Closed Up at Once and Hard Work Will Begin.

The long expected order for an election in Company E has at last arrived, and Captain Hill has ordered the command to assemble in the armory next Monday evening for that purpose.

The company will elect two lieutenants who will fill the positions made vacant by the resignation of Lieutenants Finley and Johnson. The officers when chosen will take up the duties of the position immediately.

The company will be recruited to its full strength at once, and regular drill will be commenced. There is no discussion as yet as to where the regiment will encamp next year, but it is the purpose to have it in splendid condition when the time arrives.

GONE TO COLUMBUS.

Representative Ashford Is In the Battle.

Hon. P. M. Ashford, representative from this county, has gone to Columbus, and will remain there until after the legislature gets down to business. He will return to Salineville to look after some private business in two weeks.

U. P. church members, age limit expires Dec. 31. See ad.

On the River.

The river is rising, and today the marks at the wharf registered 6.6 feet. Business about the local wharf is quiet at present, but this is caused by the potteries not working. The Queen City passed down last night with a fair trip, and the Ben Hur passed up and is due down tonight.

Word from Zanesville says the Lorraine is laid up there. The ice in the Muskingum was so heavy that skaters crossed ahead of the boat at places where it forced its way through Tuesday.

Passed up—Enterprise and Robert Jenkins.

Fitz-Corbett tonight, Grand.

Excursion Rates.

Following the annual custom, ticket agents of the Pennsylvania lines will sell excursion tickets Dec. 24, 25 and 31, 1897, and Jan. 1, 1898, for the Christmas and New Year holidays. Tickets will not be sold to adults for less than 25 cents, nor to children for less than 15 cents. Return limit of excursion tickets will include Jan. 4, 1898. For rates, time of trains and further information please apply to nearest ticket agent of the Pennsylvania lines.

Get Out of the Cold.

You may quickly pass from a cold to a warm climate via Pennsylvania lines from East Liverpool, the direct tourist rate route through Chicago and St. Louis to California, and through Cincinnati or Louisville to Florida and the south. For details apply to J. K. Dillon, district passenger agent, 380 Fifth avenue, Pittsburgh.

Losing No Time.

A force of mechanics are working every day and for several hours each night putting in position the handsome new furniture at the First National bank.

Excellent progress has been made, but it will be several days before the work is finished.

Veriscope tonight.

A Good Town.

A life insurance man traveling, for a Cleveland company and now in the city, said to a reporter today that although he had been in the city but a few days he had not been in a town during the last year where he found the people working as they are at present in East Liverpool.

Ready to Start.

The Sebring company have ordered a large double pump to be used in the slip house of the Second street pottery.

Almost all the machinery for the East End plant has been completed. The small lot yet to be made will be sent there within the next two weeks.

Card of Thanks.

We desire to extend sincere thanks to the ministers and friends who so kindly aided us in our great bereavement, the death of Charles Heckathorn.

Mrs. RUTH HECKATHORN AND FAMILY.

The Poetry of Nature.

"The poetry of earth is never dead," wrote Keats, and though the statement sounds at first thought a dangerously sweeping one there is no doubt that if he had been called upon to argue the point he would have successfully maintained his thesis. Regarded subjectively, the poetry of earth, or, in other words, the quality which makes for poetry in external nature, is that power in nature which moves us by suggestion, which excites in us emotion, imagination or poignant association, which plays upon the tense strings of our sympathies with the fingers of memory or desire. This power may reign not less in a bleak pasture lot than in a paradise close of bloom and verdure, not less in a roadside thistle patch than in a peak that soars into the sunset. It works through sheer beauty or sheer sublimity, but it may work with equal effect through austerity or reticence or limitation or change. It may use the most common scenes, the most familiar facts and forms, as the vehicle of its most penetrating and most illuminating message. It is apt to make the drop of dew on a grass blade as significant as the starred sphere of the sky.

Merely descriptive poetry is not very far removed from the work of the reporter and the photographer. Lacking the selective quality of creative art, it is in reality little more than a representation of some of the raw materials of poetry. It leaves the reader unmoved, because little emotion has gone to its making.—Charles G. D. Roberts in Forum.

A Baked Bonnet.

During a recent rainstorm a society woman was caught in a sudden downpour and was compelled to run home in very undignified haste. Her dignity, however, wasn't damaged as much as her bonnet. The latter had been a dream of beauty when she started out. It was a perfect nightmare when she reached home again. She thought that a little heating would bring it about all right. The kitchen fire had gone out, but she put the bonnet in the oven and prepared to build the fire. Just as she had got all the materials together the doorbell rang. It was a caller. The visitor was a great gossip, and she had a brand new bit of scandal to tell. The two women became very much absorbed in their chat. During the course of it the servant girl, who had been out for the afternoon, returned and passed back into the kitchen. About an hour later the two gossips in the parlor began to notice a queer odor coming from the kitchen. The truth of the situation suddenly flashed upon the hostess, who immediately rushed out into the kitchen. There she found to her horror that the girl had built the kitchen fire and her lovely bonnet lay in the oven roasted to a crisp.

—Philadelphia Record.

A London Cook.

There is a celebrated cook in London about whom it is said that he makes an income of over £2,000 a year. He is attached to no house.

This is how he earns his living: In his own brougham he sets out toward evening for the house of some rich man who is going to give a dinner at which every dish must be above criticism. Here he alights, and, making for the kitchen, goes through the process of tasting all the soups, sauces and made dishes, advising, when his palate suggests, a little more salt here, a pinch of herbs there, a dash of sugar in this entrée, a suspicion of onion in that salmis, etc.

This done, he pockets his fee of 5 guineas and drives on to the next dinner giving patron who has bidden him to his feast in this strange fashion. His nightly list comprises many houses all through the London season.—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Masarwa Bushman.

Here is a solitary figure, that of a Masarwa bushman, engaged in digging up bulbs as a food supply. These bulbs, small, round and smooth and of a sweet, nutty flavor, are exactly the same as those for which the guinea fowls are searching so eagerly. They may be called the bushman's bread, and when game is scarce or hunting luck is out they serve as a mainstay against utter starvation.

The bushman collects his bulbs in the shell of a tortoise and presently will return to the protecting bush beneath which he and his family slept last night. After that he will perhaps visit a snare he set yesterday to entrap a duiker, one of the small antelopes of South Africa, or, failing the capture of the little buck, he may try to stalk a paaau with his bow and poisoned arrow or follow the troop of guinea fowls on the off chance of securing a head.—London Spectator.

The Origin of Puppet Shows.

The puppet show is such an ancient institution and has been popular in so many countries that its origin is quite obscured by the mists of antiquity. Antiquaries with ethnological spectacles have peered into this pristine fog and discerned a connection between the puppet show and religious observances. They have established the fact that dolls and marionettes are closely related and even advanced the theory that the shadow puppets used in many lands denote a time when all the people saw of religious ceremonies was the shadow of the officiating priests cast upon the walls of the sacred tent.—Francis J. Ziegler in Harper's Magazine.

WE HAVE DOUBTLESS DESERVED

the liberal patronage bestowed upon us during the past year, but we are none the less grateful to the masses who have contributed to our commercial prosperity. There is but one way we can reciprocate, and that is by continuing the policy we have mapped out, of deserving that which we seek, the confidence of the community, and the respect of our rivals. We are not faultless, we admit; but there has never been an error but what we have tried to rectify it; there has never been a contention but what we have given the benefit of the doubt to the customer. We are the pioneers of the one price system and perhaps the only firm adhering to it strictly. We advocate and practice honesty in advertising. We make it part of our business never to be undersold. We are in business for the profit there is in it, and we have not been disappointed in this year's expectations. But there is an annual grand final—stock taking time—when wise merchants wish to count their gains in dollars and cents, not merchandise. Our annual inventory sale starts tomorrow and continues for the month of January. The balance of winter stocks are to be converted into cash; at cost if we can, at a loss if we must. And bear this in mind, you who are attracted by staring announcements, that although we will no more tell you that our goods will be sold at 25 cents on the dollar, or at 50 cents on the dollar, than would the illustrious Father of Our Country, were he among us; yet we firmly promise you that our price cutting shall be as deep, or deeper, than that of our respected contemporaries, even though our newspaper announcements might not be so sensational or alluring. We have relied much upon the wisdom of our community in the past, and find no reason to change our course in this respect. Overcoats, Ulsters and other Mid Winter Clothing, are all ready for you in these new profitless prices.

We wish you all a happy and prosperous new year.

VERY RARE DOLLARS

TWO MORE OF 1804 SAID TO HAVE BEEN FOUND.

Mr. Seymour and Mr. Delos Claim They Have One Each—Where the Original 20,000 Dollars of 1804 Went to Is a Mystery—Last One Found in New York.

unpopular by suggesting that necessity in a very forceful manner, for funds were scarce at that time. The objection at once met him:

"There is no money to pay them with."

"In the mint are 20,000 silver dollars not yet issued," he replied. "Why not send those?"

Accordingly the silver dollars were shipped to gladden the hearts of the marines. It happened that about that time tribesmen from the interior had come foraging to the coast, where they fell in with our marines. Those tribesmen, it is said, took a violent fancy to the silver dollars. No other money would they have, but for these coins they would barter their most precious possessions. The result was that the marines sailed away possessed of much treasure of the orient, while the natives, wearing clanking chains of 1804 dollars, danced joyously upon the sands. All these coins their new possessors punched to string as necklaces or waistbands and took back with them into the interior, where they were lost, buried with their owners, or scattered. This is the theory to which most of the collectors adhere, and it is hypothetically substantiated by reports that several years ago two old American dollars with holes punched where the date had been turned up in an Algerian village.

Of the two dollars bearing the 1804 date now known to be in existence one is owned by L. E. Altwain of St. Joseph, Mo., who, after long negotiations, bought it from an Illinois man for $1,000. That was several years ago. The other was in the collection of Parmlee, the noted Boston numismatist and collector. He paid $750 for it some time in the seventies, but could undoubtedly have sold it for more than three times that amount. At one time the government was in negotiation for it, but the negotiations fell through. When the Parmlee collection was sold at auction in New York several years ago, the famous dollar was not a part of it. From time to time reports of other 1804 dollars have been circulated, but they are invariably turned out to be either with foundation or to refer to bad counterfeits.

What has become of the 20,000 1804

silver dollars? That is the question over which numismatists have pondered and explored. The theory which seems to be best borne out by facts is as follows,

based on the undoubted fact that there were 20,000 of these coins struck off in the year 1804, which is sufficiently attested by records. At that time we were engaged in a war with Tripoli, and our marines cruising about the northern coast of Africa had to be paid. A member of congress made himself

not known. As for the existing two

1804 dollars, which are the envy of every collector in the country, it has been pretty well established that they were coined in 1828 through the connivance of men in the mint with two collectors, the old die being found and the coins being struck off, although this constitutes, and did at that time constitute, a penal offense. This in no wise decreased the value of the two coins; if anything, it enhanced it.

As to the genuineness of the dollar in the possession of Mr. Billy Seymour of Montana, the coin collectors can only theorize at this distance. Ten years ago there were 20,000 coin collectors in America, which number has been reduced perhaps 50 per cent by hard times and the increasing rarity of old coins. If that 1804 dollar had been going the rounds long, it is hardly possible that it would have escaped the notice, either at first hand or through mention of some vigilant numismatist, particularly as the appearance of any coin of that age is unusual and likely to be remarked.

Still another 1804 dollar has turned up in a bookseller's shop on Canal street, in New York. Two months ago it was bought by Felix Delos, a marble cutter living in New York, for $100. This one was in an excellent state of preservation, slightly darkened, as if from the action of sulphur, but as clear and clean cut as a coin of the present year.—New York Sun.

Race For a Copyright.

When President McKinley's mother was stricken he telegraphed: "Tell mother I'll be there." The man who wrote "After the Ball" and another "popular song" writer had a race the other day to copyright the expression. The "After the Ball" man was a little late, so he added the word "Just" at the beginning of the sentence, and each writer secured a copyright.—Richmond Times.

Mme. Sarah Bernhardt's Dress.

Sarah Bernhardt in an interview recently said:

"My life is wearied by the ceaseless watch I am obliged to keep against vitriol." She has been escorted everywhere, having been threatened by the mother of Mlle. Klein, who months ago threatened to use vitriol, and who, at Sarah's instance, was confined in an asylum.—New York Tribune.

WE ARE DETERMINED TO REDUCE

SURPRISE CLOTHING STOCK.

CORNER EAST MARKET AND SIXTH STREETS, EAST LIVERPOOL, O.

MAN, POOR MAN. She Didn't give a thing to him. He can't find a thing in his pocket, even with his specks.

That man's wife didn't come to our place to spend her Christmas money. It didn't go 'round. Santa Claus' money will reach further and buy more at our place than elsewhere. Prices prove it and then you know we give credit if the money runs short.

WADE, The Jeweler.
